Nineteen Forty-Four Yearbook of The University of North Carolina YACKETY YACK Chapel Hill, N. C.

KARL BISHOPRIC, EDITOR-IN-CHIEF
HARRIS KNIGHT AND DAN BAGLEY, BUSINESS MANAGERS

January 30, 1944

Carolina Coeds and Gentlemen:

The South Building bell is striking two o'clock a.m.
That sentence tells the story of this year's Yackety Yack
----- late hours ----- hard work ----- scarce materials. The going has been tough at times, but most of the obstacles have been surmounted and we hope you will like the finished product.

The martial tenor that spread over Chapel Hill last year has found its way into the annual. Men in uniform are in most of the pictures and faces new to the campus predominate. Changing characters in a changing scene, these new students have done as much as could be expected to fit themselves into the life of the University. And through integration and equal representation the Yackety Yack hopes to have helped in some small way to bring the segments of a student body with varied program and outlook into closer harmony.

If we have accomplished nothing else, we offer this book as proof that global belligerency does not compel the cessation of student activities. Caroline publications and organizations cease, will and must continue; must retain for future students the traditions of Chapel Hill.

Sincerely,

The Editors

NORTH CAROLINA CHAPEL HILL, NORTH CAROLINA

*H*URRYING feet sound the death tocsin for lazy yesterday.

The campus is overflowing with boys and girls trying to rush through school for one reason or another. Older boys, most of them in uniform, are finishing; younger ones are racing the draft; the coeds, many of whom are being graduated each quarter, have speeded up their scholastic careers. Every person is concerned with his own problems—problems made immediate and vital by the war. Carolina is a campus geared for war.

Never before have Carolina students been so closely knit as to present aims. Carolina's shady, sleepy campus is alive, unified by the very tenseness which exists everywhere. The students have grown up; they've settled down to business. And part of that business has been to bind together the civilian Carolina of years gone by with a new, military Carolina. By working overtime, V-12 boys, N.R.O.T.C. students, Marines, and civilians have tried to keep the cogs of Carolina moving, so that when the war is over students will not have to begin anew their extra-curricula life.

This effort to keep the same foundations, but to alter the appearance and the size of the building, has been a tremendous task. It has been in the hands of boys and girls who never before have faced responsibilities. Things have changed now. The students are clinging to what they now have, in an effort to make secure the things they want left standing when the gale now sweeping the campus has subsided.

Chapel Hill is an ideal, a symbol for which we are fighting. The faith, the efforts, the conscientious work and accomplishments of those who believe in this ideal are directed towards making the Carolina of the future even better than the Carolina of the past. This struggle to keep the best of Carolina intact through these critical days is a fight more important than winning the Duke-Carolina game. It will be won by those who care; the various people united by their dream for the future of this University.

This unity is an intangible thing. It is not the unity of small cliques, of fraternities, sororities, clubs, organizations. It is the unity of an entire student body, Navy, Army, Marine, and civilian students, now recognizing the seriousness of today.

When the tension is gone, when saddle shoes and open necked shirts are seen again in classrooms, the students will once again split into many different factions. But now, though their uniforms are different, they are alike. By something down inside they are bound together.

There are jobs to do; the time is now.

MARK OF THE TIME.

SOME NIGHT TOMORROW.

NOR ALWAYS THE STORM.

THE

THE NATION ENTERED its third year of war and Carolina had come to life . . .

The old-timers from the science labs, from Graham Memorial and the fraternities shook their heads and proclaimed, "the old gray mare ain't what she used to be," as the Navy poured in July 1 and took over most of what was left of the University after the Pre-Flight School had gobbled up the gym and the upper and lower quads—once happy hunting grounds for campus politicians.

THE CROWDED "Y"

BLITHE IGNORANCE STILL.

AT CHAPEL HILL

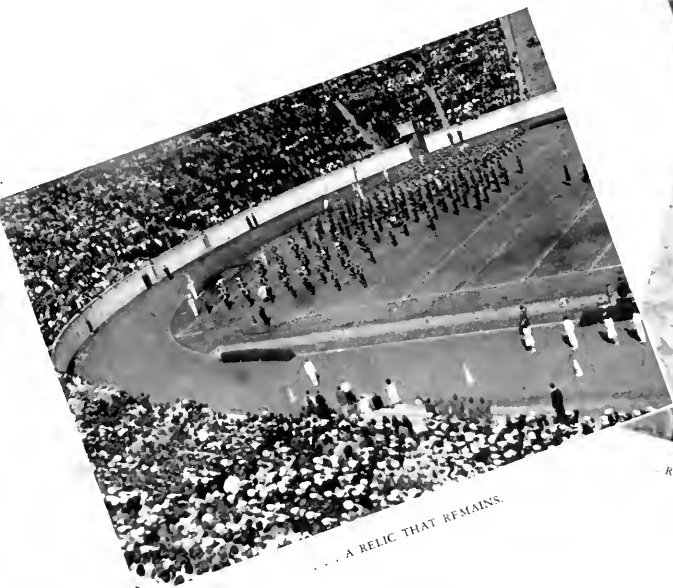

July '43—July '44

The foundations of student government shook under the strain, downtown eateries were crowded to the bursting point and beer was scarce—of whiskey there was none, but somehow fun and classes went on and the Carolina education—40 per cent books, 60 per cent extra-curriculars—was not neglected.

One thousand Navy V-12 students, 300 Marines, 200 N.R.O.T.C. students, 800 male civilians and an equal number of coeds, 1,800 Pre-Flighters, first 200 Pre-Meteorology students and later in September, 275 A.S.T.P. men in the Area and Language School, the forty-odd civilian pilot trainees who left in July, 75 Army med students and a smattering of potential Navy doctors—this was Chapel Hill in 1943-44.

... FROM THE BATTLE OF CHAPEL HILL TO WAR.

... A RELIC THAT REMAINS.

... RELIC OF BYGONE DAYS.

"PETE"

DEDICATED TO DEAN ROLAND B. PARKER

*F*OR guidance and friendship today's student body looks to Dean Roland B. Parker. Since war began his responsibilities have increased, for the problems that face the individual students, the student body as a whole, he accepts as his own.

More than any person outside the staff, Dean Parker has aided in the building of this year's YACKETY YACK, and it is with grateful appreciation that this book is dedicated to him.

In a sense this is his "Senior" year, for it was four short years ago that the present Dean of Men came to Chapel Hill. Because he is a symbol of the highest devotion and friendship, because he is human as well as efficient, Pete Parker holds the respect, admiration and love of the Carolina student body.

"DR. FRANK"

PRESIDENT GRAHAM

*I*N THESE DAYS of war when Carolina more than ever needs guidance, inspiration and foresight, it turns to Dr. Frank Graham. For the problems that seem beyond solution he finds answers, drawn from his understanding of people and principles.

He was a Marine in the last war and he knows how to fight. On the War Labor Board in Washington, he wages a personal fight for justice. On weekends he comes home to Chapel Hill, to set the University in order, to give Carolina the faith it needs for today.

During this period of disintegration and confusion his influence is a binding force. His patience, his gentleness, his firm beliefs, bring people and forces together in cooperation, where only discord existed before.

His endurance, his vitality and his wisdom are directed towards winning a total war, a total peace in the days that follow for Chapel Hill, this nation and the world.

MILITARY ADMINISTRATION

FORTY-EIGHT HOURS before the bombing of Pearl Harbor Captain W. S. Popham, Commandant of the V-12 School here, left Honolulu to come to Carolina as head of the N.R.O.T.C. unit. A Naval Academy man, Captain Popham has spent the last 32 years of his life in active Naval service. From 1914-20 he spent three years on the Battleship Texas as an Ensign, was Executive Officer of a large war training camp, served aboard the Gunboat Nashville, and later commanded a Sub for 18 months. He is from Annapolis but is one of the best "Carolina" men on campus.

Marine Commanding Captain James Marshall knows why his men are being trained. For fifteen months he was on active duty with the fleet in Central America. Three months after receiving his degree in economics from Furman he joined the Marine Corps. At Carolina he has charge of 220 Marines. Captain Marshall is a soft-voiced Southerner, but he is also a Marine and is training his men in the tradition of the Marine Corps.

Captain J. G. Skinner, Commandant of the Pre-Meteorology School, is an old Carolina man, the Class of '32. From the last of March until September Skinner was in charge of 242 students who prepared for the study of weather here under combined Army-Weather Bureau direction.

Commandant of the Army Specialized Training Program on campus is Captain E. V. Horton. Under his supervision are 250 foreign area and language and 50 medical trainees.

CAPTAIN POPHAM

CAPTAINS SKINNER AND HORTON

CAPTAIN MARSHALL

DEAN OF ADMINISTRATION

DEAN HOUSE's personality is as many sided as the jobs he has to do. He is forthright and honest, determined and hard-working when he knows he is right. But he is the first to admit when he is wrong, the first to listen to someone whom he considers more capable.

"On moral issues and social movements," says Dean House, "I put complete faith in Frank Graham. But when it comes to farm problems, I'm pretty much of an authority myself. I was born on a farm, you know."

Dean House is the son of an Eastern Carolina Sheriff and farmer, but he reads Greek in the original and keeps up with the best in current and classic literature.

When it comes to enjoying the human every day things of life, Dean House has no equal. He sees the humor in every situation and he has a down to earth love of living.

He is a leader to be admired and respected, a friend to enjoy and remember.

DEAN OF STUDENTS

HE THINKS a problem through, and he analyzes it from every angle before he acts; and when Dean Bradshaw begins something, it is carried out until that something is accomplished.

The planning for a wartime Carolina was done in a great measure by Dean Bradshaw. With foresight, he realized what lay ahead for universities like Carolina and went to work to prepare for these days of war.

Democracy, learning, teaching: these are his three great battlefields. He started work on them in his undergraduate days when he was a pillar of Student Government. He has continued that fight throughout the years that have followed.

He is loyal to Carolina, its students and for what this University stands. With Dean Bradshaw at work, Carolina need have no fear of war days or the days that follow the Armistice.

DEAN OF WOMEN

FOR A QUARTER OF A CENTURY Dean Stacy has been supervising Carolina coeds. She has watched them grow from a handful of several dozen to an organized body of 800 women. She has campaigned for funds to build dormitories, and she has had personal supervision over the decorating of all the girls' dormitories that have been built here.

In 1913 Mrs. Stacy came to Carolina as a bride, the wife of Dean M. H. Stacy, back in the days when the University had but one Dean. At his death in 1918, President Chase offered her the job of looking after the coeds and she's been doing that ever since.

As the number of coeds has increased, so have Mrs. Stacy's duties and responsibilities. It has been her job to place girls in the crowded dormitories, to solve the roommate and three girls in a room problem.

Throughout her years at Carolina, Mrs. Stacy has not wavered from her goal: higher education for women. Disregarding her emotions and personal feelings, she sticks to her principles and strives to set up for coeds the kind of college life she sincerely believes is best for them.

DEANS

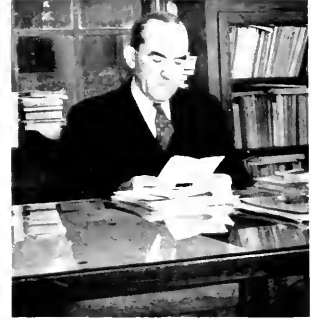

THE DEANS of the University schools this year have faced many problems. To them has fallen the job of running Navy and civilian classes concurrently.

Throughout the confusion of a combined Navy and civilian university they have continued to work efficiently, conscientiously. The routine of Carolina classes, taken for granted by all students, runs smoothly because of the hard work that these Deans have done.

While other phases of life here run riot, they keep the academic part of Carolina on an even keel. In a year of confusion, they have done their part in simplifying and organizing our daily college existence.

THE FACULTY of the University of North Carolina represents on a small scale the aim of the United Nations. Here as teachers men from every corner of the earth meet and work together for higher education.

When Hitler came to power in Germany Munich born Dr. Franz Gutmann saw what was happening to German education. He had been a full professor at the universities of Breslau, Jena and Goettingen and director of the institute of economics and private insurance at the latter.

In 1939 Gutmann accepted a call to Carolina, where he would be able to teach students in his special field of government and banking and economic theory according to his own beliefs.

"I like the students here," he says, "for both civilians and V-12 boys possess natural sympathetic qualities that makes it easy to really know them. I like Chapel Hill because it is so conducive to research."

In the last war Gutmann was a captain on the German side. In this war his age prevents him from fighting for the Allies, but he is doing his part by training the next generation for the economic problems they will have to face when peace is made, by preparing the next generation for advancement.

Early in 1939 Prof. E. P. Hexner and Hitler were in Prague at the same time. By the fall of that same year Hexner, his wife and two boys were in Chapel Hill. Unwilling to have his sons educated according to Nazi theories Hexner sent them to England, then brought them to the United States.

A Czech by birth, a political scientist by profession Hexner is an authority on the serious wartime problem of international cartels. At one time he was coordinator of the Czechoslovak steel industry and he has written a book on the International Steel Cartel. In Europe and in America Hexner has published several books on political science.

As professor of civilian and V-12s Hexner knows many Carolina students. "I'm not the kind of professor who appeals to students," he says, with a sad twinkle in his eye. But his students . . . coeds, sailors and 4-Fs just grin. They know better.

From the Far East comes Dr. Y. K. Wong, math professor from the University of Chicago. Born in South China near Hong Kong, Wong studied from his freshman year until he received his Ph.D. at the University of Chicago.

After he received his master's degree Wong returned to China to teach in the National University of Peking in North China. Dean of the school at that time was Hu Shih, now Chinese diplomat to the United States.

Wong has done research at the Institute of Advanced Study at Princeton, and has worked on the manuscripts of the late E. H. Moore, head of the math department of Chicago.

At Carolina is a research associate, and is now teaching for the first time beginning mathematics. To Carolina he brings the new ideas of the Middle West, the scholarship of the Chinese, the friendliness of a hospitable Southerner.

PROFESSORS

The first professor to teach American literature in Switzerland is Carolina's professor of German, Dr. W. P. Friederich. Although the Swiss studied English literature they had no courses at all in American literature when Friederich was an undergraduate at the University of Bern.

After he had studied at the Sorbonne in Paris, for three years at Harvard and at Yale Friederich returned to Bern. With books of American literature donated by the City of New Bern and purchased at the Bull's Head book shop he returned to his alma mater to teach the works of Emerson, Hawthorne and Longfellow.

Friederich has spent the major part of his time in the United States since 1927. At present he is teaching German and German literature to civilians and A.S.T.P. students.

G. R. Hernandez is half Cuban, half citizen of a small North Carolina town. He was born in the province of Havana, in Cuba and he went to school there until 1931. But he came to North Carolina to continue his education at a small Presbyterian boys' school in Hemp, N. C. There he came to know intimately the people, the habits of Southern small towns. He liked it here in North Carolina, so he stayed. For a year he worked in a silk mill, earned enough money to go to college and entered Mars Hill Junior College. His third year he transferred to Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn., where he earned his letters in baseball and basketball and his diploma in 1938.

As a professional baseball player Hernandez moved to Hickory in 1939. There he got a job teaching Spanish in Hickory High School and acting as Assistant Coach of High School Athletics.

In the fall of 1941 as a research assistant in romance languages he came to Carolina. At present, as Director of Spanish Instruction of the A.S.T.P. School here his time is devoted solely to A.S.T.P. students.

* * * * *

Senor Guillermo Brown teaches Spanish and studies dramatics. In his native Chile, on the continent of South America students of the drama cannot get a degree in dramatic art. That's why Brown came to Carolina.

After receiving his B.F. at the Universidad de Chile Brown came to the United States as Chilean consul at Baltimore, Maryland.

Senor Brown is particularly interested in serious drama, drama of power and psychology. "We in South America do not go to the theatre to laugh." Brown has written several plays since he came to Carolina and has had one experimental produced in the Playmaker Theatre.

Enthusiastic about the extra-curriculum life of the campus Brown and his wife, whom he met on a pavilion after he had corresponded with her for many years, miss few Carolina entertainments. Because of his amiability and his interest in Carolina Brown is doing a one man job of furthering the good neighbor policy of the Americas.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

ALEXANDER B. ANDREWS

THE MEMBERS of the Board of Trustees are elected for terms of eight years. Their tenure of office is so staggered that one-fourth of their number is elected every two years. The Board, composed of over a hundred members, has complete authority in all matters concerning the University.

THE 1300 V-12 Gobs and Leathernecks on campus come from everywhere. While most of them are directly from high school or are old Carolina boys, there are many Sailors who have seen action in the fleet and a large number of Marines from other universities. Uncle Sam, who foots the bills, can send these men wherever he wants them to go.

At Carolina they take a few required subjects such as physics and naval science, but major in whatever they choose. Their stay here ranges from two to seven terms. After that comes midshipman's school, or for the Marines R.O.C. at Quantico. From these advanced bases they are commissioned second lieutenants in the Marines or ensigns in the Navy, then sent directly into action. If they don't measure up at any school along the line they are sent to boot camp to try their hands in an enlisted status.

Carolina is only the first rung in the Naval ladder, but the ground work given here is what the rest of a future officer's Navy life is based upon.

RATIONED FUN

JHE 0600 RISING HOUR and uniforms were taken in stride. Except for the local beer and date shortages, the V-12ers led a social life much like that of old peacetime Carolina days.

The discouraging six to one man-woman ratio in Chapel Hill brought about the discovery of Burlington as a week-end hang-out. The beer situation handled itself: those who wanted it most got there first.

Carolina dances helped to while away the week-ends. The Grail gave several, the coeds too, while the N.R.O.T.C. had its annual ball. White ties and tails were absent but the uniforms added military color.

When the V-12ers put on their uniforms in July they automatically acquired a military lust for life. The gleam in their eyes was a new one; their daily schedule was different; but they still had the same social ideas that Carolina gentlemen had back in the days when life wasn't rationed.

More active than ever in campus affairs, the Unit under Battalion Commander John C. Paty, began to prepare for its first graduation. The first class with 44 remaining out of its original 110 and with 3 second classmen who had joined its ranks, faced the realization that it soon would be serving on the high seas. Four original members, Robert Feinburg, Wade Weatherford, John Robinson and Dick Bennett, having already left the Unit as ensigns, the first class buckled down to the task of making themselves fit to carry that half-inch stripe on their sleeves.

With its members living together as an organization for the first time, the Unit through its cadet officers controlled directly the lives of all its students. They were aroused at 0600 by the Unit bugler, they were met with the new experience of cleaning their own rooms, they found themselves without the privilege of cutting or being late to classes. They led a new kind of life; . . . new to them and new to Carolina.

As in the past, N.R.O.T.C. men led in student government. Denmon Hammond replaced John Robinson as president of the student body; Reid Thompson took over the speakership of the student legislature and those officers elected last spring continued to serve.

A.S.T.P. AND MEDICINE

*I*NTO THIS NAVY dominated University came 250 of the Army's "best educated" enlisted men, students of the Army Specialized Training Program. Their Army I.Q. is more than 130 and the majority of them speak one foreign language fluently and have a fairly good speaking and reading knowledge of others.

Included in the A.S.T.P. unit are 70 med students who are speeding through complicated med courses to become Army doctors. There are also a few Navy med students under V-12 direction.

They're a varied bunch of service men. They've come from all over the states, from all kinds of jobs. Some were teachers, lawyers, newspaper men, others worked from Hollywood to Brooklyn.

Their classes are held separately, their free hours on this campus are limited, so they come into contact with only a small portion of the Carolina student body.

Most of their time is spent studying French, Spanish, Italian, German or medicine. On week-days they have eight hours of academic work per day plus an hour of military drill. Except on Saturdays and Sundays they have but 60 minutes a day to do what they please.

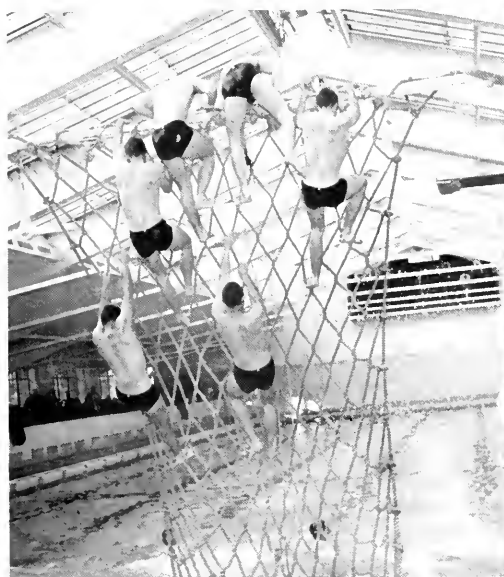

They've come to Carolina for 36 weeks to learn, to prepare themselves for service in war torn Europe.

NAVY PRE-FLIGHT SCHOOL

*T*WO SPRINGS AGO the Navy Pre-Flight School came to Chapel Hill, Carolina's first big time military unit of this war. The village looked with interest at the uniformed hordes of cadets who streamed throughout the town on week-ends.

But now the Pre-Flight School is a part of Chapel Hill, an accepted section of Carolina, something the coeds would find difficult to do without.

The school is now training 1875 men from all parts of the country who have come here to undergo one of the toughest training courses in the armed forces. Headed by Commander John P. Graff the school has moved with ease and efficiency through its initial stages into maturity.

PRE-METEOROLOGY SCHOOL

THE PRE-METEOROLOGY SCHOOL came to Carolina quietly, did its work, and left. For six months 242 students studied the weather under joint Army Air Corps and Weather Bureau supervision.

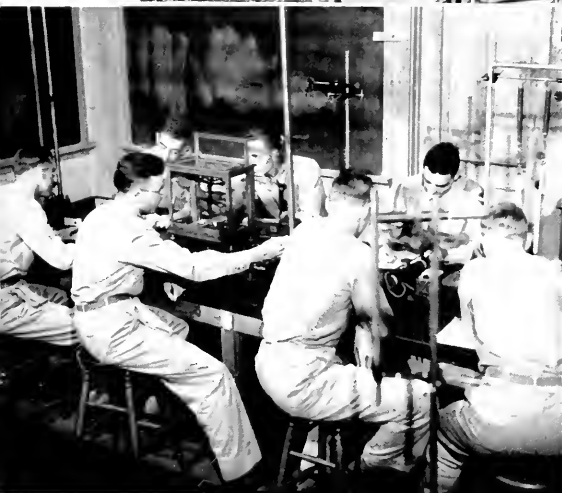

The Pre-Meteorology School was organized as a temporary unit; the one here was a "B" school in the two-part Army program. From Carolina its trainees, 183 of whom completed the course, went to "A" schools at Chanute Field or at the University of Chicago.

Heading the school was Capt. J. G. Skinner, a Carolina man of the Class of '32. He came as a Lieutenant, but left with his Captain's bars.

The Pre-Met course here was short and condensed. The men arose each morning at 6:30, had classes from 8 until noon, then physical education for an hour. Afternoon classes were held from 2 until 4 o'clock, military drill from 4 until 5. At 6:30 the trainees began their nightly study which lasted until 9:30 . . . then to bed at 10:30.

The Pre-Met students led a busy life at Carolina. As weather specialists at American air fields all over the world they will continue to be busy.

UNIVERSITY DAY

UNIVERSITY DAY at Carolina commemorates the laying of the cornerstone of the first building, Old East, in 1793. This year's celebration was dedicated to the sons of Carolina who have fought in this nation's wars.

It has been said that no college or university in America in Civil War days gave more of its sons to the armies in proportion than did the University of North Carolina. The War between the States literally consumed the University.

Carolina men had previously served in the War of 1812 and in the Mexican War. They again saw service in the Spanish-American War.

And in the first World War the University saw 2,250 of her former students enter the service—upwards of a quarter of her living alumni at the time. Hundreds of these saw hard fighting overseas. Two score paid the sacrifice.

And now the University is again serving its people at war. Some six thousand of her sons and daughters are in the armed forces. Others man the lines of the home front. Former students of this University, as President Graham has said, "push on wherever danger stretches its farthest fronts of democracy, which will, in God's good time, beat back the Axis Powers and make possible, at last, the advance of freedom, the production of abundances and the organization of justice and peace in the world.

And so on University Day—the 150th in a long succession of University Days—we engaged in a program of commemoration and rededication. We commemorated the deed and faith of the Revolutionary founders of the University. We rededicated ourselves in their spirit to the high purpose for which the University of North Carolina was established—by which it has endured.

RATIONED CLASSES

*N*EVER BEFORE in the history of Carolina have classes been more confused or class schedules more disrupted.

A double undergraduate school system, a shortage of professors combined with an increase in student population, wartime priorities, and cooperation headaches with the Navy have all added to the disconcertion of the Administration.

Not the least of its worries is the fact that new students are entering the University nearly every month and nearly everyone is in some sort of a speed-up program. A great deal of difficulty was encountered in making up the class section of the YACKETY YACK due to the fact that a number of persons had no idea as to which class they belonged.

In the face of practically insurmountable difficulties the faculty has managed to keep going—and more—to turn in a good record for themselves and the student body.

A cheery smile and a realization of the problems made by war have kept students at work with a will. The fate of compulsory class attendance for the V-12ers and a prospect of the trimester system for everybody will no doubt eventually bring order out of chaos.

JHE SENIOR CLASS OF 1944 says good-bye to Carolina, and Carolina says good-bye to Senior Classes for the duration; for ours is the last until after the war.

This spring we cannot look back over our years on the Hill and remember ourselves as the students who began our lives here together in September of 1940. Though some of us did come to the village for the first time four years ago, many came the next year, and the next, and the next. For we speeded up our schooling after Pearl Harbor; we hurried through our formal education; we transferred from other schools from all parts of these United States.

CLASS

This year the Navy blue mixed with Army khaki and Marine greens and plaid jackets and bright sweaters and straight skirts. Many of us came back in July wearing regulation seamen's uniforms. Others of us planned the near time when we would finish our scholastic requirements and take our places as the men and women behind the men behind the guns.

We didn't graduate together this year. Some of our number were graduated after the first session of summer school, some after the second session in December, in March, in June. Some of us went through formal graduation exercises; others of us merely went to South Building and left our forwarding addresses for our diplomas. And still others of us interrupted our life at Carolina long before our sheepskins were due. In short we were a University at war—and we were working more than usual.

But it wasn't all work for us this year. We played in our free time much the same as always. We rang up another "first" for our pages—we became the first Senior Class to attend Junior-Seniors in the fall. The only times we heard big name bands were when we dropped nickels in the slot at the Porthole, Harry's, Brady's, and the rest. We considered ourselves lucky when we could get a band at all.

We who are here as Seniors still have no need to remember Carolina as "it once was." We'll remember it as it is—not just a place, not just a University, not just a rather long stop gap before we step over into the outside world.

We remember Carolina as an ideal, an ideal to which we of the Class of 1944 have dedicated our lives.

JUNIOR

THE CLASS OF '45 had its difficulties and it might even be said that just that was the main order when the school year began.

Officers elected a year ago to keep the class together were no longer in Carolina regalia as both Dick Hartley and John W. Davis, Vice-President and Treasurer, suddenly found themselves working for that mutual Uncle—Sam.

Thus a new election and the selection of Lane Stokes and Bill Stevens to fill the respective vacancies, this being accomplished only after lengthy battering as to the eligibility of military students to hold class offices. Vice-President Stokes, a Navy V-12'er, and Treasurer Stevens, N.R.O.T.C., began functioning immediately.

BILL STEVENS, Treasurer; REID THOMPSON, Student Council; RALPH STRAYHORN, President; RIVERS JOHNSON, Secretary.

CLASS . . . '44

Troubles still were manifest on every hand as friends disappeared from school in a never ending stream. Civilians grew fewer in number and class progress became more and more retarded.

Came the first joint meeting of the Junior-Senior Class and the agreement to move up the annual dance week prior to November 20, in an effort to fete the Naval Seniors going out on that date for active duty. The committee began work for the procurement of a big-name, big-time band, Kay Kyser preferred. This fell as so much futility, however, and Hurst Hatch, popular music maker, was signed for the frolic making week-end then scheduled for November 15 and 16.

The committee decided to make the occasion a joint sponsorship between the two classes and the Carolina Intramural department. And the feature night came and went with the sports carnival attractions along with the usual enjoyable dances.

Then came more of that hated trouble when the collection of class fees was started. No individual pictures of V-12 students for the YACKETY YACK because the shortage of funds and film hampered wholesale picture making.

A budget bill was drawn up by the Junior and Senior Presidents, passed by the Legislature and a budget committee was set up. This committee was established with the sole duty of passing class budgets, with a clause stating a class election could overrule the committee's decisions. In the past, budgets have been slow in passing and this committee was begun to expedite approval of budgets in coming years.

Thus troubles and petty difficulties played their role but the year rolled on, just as any year would under warring conditions.

JUNIOR SCENES

*J*HE JUNIORS . . . they knew three months of peacetime Carolina—just enough to give them something to reminisce about as they watch the columns of uniformed students file by. Their memories are of big-time parties where the beer wasn't rationed, week-ends visiting the Freshmen at W. C., and their real post-football game parties as college freshmen. They've seen the campus night life slow down, they've watched the departure of all the Carolina big-wigs, they've noticed the increase of the numbers of coeds in their classes and extra-curriculas. They have witnessed Carolina's metamorphosis from a carefree college to a University at war. Their chatter is of the old times—but they enjoy the life of today.

DICK FORD, Secretary-Treasurer; DAN DAVIS, President;
BRUCE VAN WAGNER, Student Legislature.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

"J HOSE COCKY SOPHOMORES!"

An old adage but it would be a slight mistake to apply it to us, the Class of '46 at Carolina. Numerically cut in half since last year with about four-fifths of our ranks under military regulations and with the remaining "civvies" carrying double scholastic burdens our so-called "cockiness" has been very little in evidence to date.

As was the case among other Carolina wartime students we each began, this year, with some definite job to do. Under the University's non-stop, speedup program we have been placed under greater tension by having to attain these goals in much less time than is usually required. The civilians have been pushing steadily forward in response to the great need for men in the various fields of science and war industry. At the same time those of us in uniform have been forced to go the limit in preparation for assuming responsibilities of leadership in our various service branches.

Nevertheless, it must not be said that we have neglected play entirely. The athletic events, dances, and other week-end activities (coupled with coed cooperation) served well to break the monotony of studies, drills, and "phys. ed."

There was always the late snack at "The Marathon" when everybody sang to the rhythm of "Pistol-Packin' Mama," and we could regain, to some degree, our "cockiness." We occasionally dropped by the "Porthole" and the "Pines" to watch the campus politicians at work or wait for the midnight show to begin. At times the latter turned out to be a rather long wait. At any rate we are deeply grateful for those intervals of pleasure and look forward to the day when Carolina students will again have an abundance of them.

In the years to come we, the Sophomores of '43 and '44, are going to realize that this was probably the most decisive period in our lives. In the succeeding days we will gain commissions in the armed forces or positions in the essential industries from which we and our country will derive the maximum benefits. On the other hand, failure here will result in transfers and induction as apprentice seamen or buck privates and, as a result, will mark our stay at Carolina as a burden to the cause of a nation at war. We are proud to point out that we have not failed to uphold that cause so far. Failures have been very few and prospect for success for most of us very promising. Thus, the story of '46 signifies not the time of graduation but a time when we will see ourselves a great deal nearer the victory for which we are all striving.

SNAPS

HE SOPHOMORES are the in-betweens. . . .

They've been at Carolina long enough to know their way to Kenan Stadium and to Jeff's, but not long enough to have everything under control. They've lived through the first hectic year as Freshmen, yet still haven't settled down to dig for that diploma.

They watched eagerly as new coeds came in—spotting the younger ones, trying to beat the time of the upperclassmen. They made the rounds of the women's dorms and sorority houses, covered all the dances and checked by the local beer parlors on week-ends.

Carolina Sophomores know that few of them will participate in the traditional Commencement exercises in Memorial Hall. Their life here is definitely limited—prescribed for the majority of them by the Navy.

In the true sense of the word they belong to no definite "class" at Carolina. At reunions in the years to come they will attend the meetings of the Class of '46, but in reality they are members of a very special class—the war class of the University during this second great world conflict.

FRESHMAN CLASS

"Ours Not to Reason Why . . ."

THIS YEAR'S FRESHMAN CLASS was a phase of Carolina that may never be repeated and for which there was certainly no precedent.

In so many ways they were "firsts" at Carolina.

First to organize themselves—for there was no student government operating when they arrived on the campus this summer. They weren't even oriented until after their first term. All they had to go on as to upholding the ideals of Carolina was a talk on honor by John Robinson and chapels once a week; still there was only one case of cheating reported for the whole summer and no one over-cut chapel. They were the first group to go through fraternity rushing in the summer.

They had their own dormitory government which functioned ably despite the lack of space forcing four boys into rooms which had previously been occupied by two.

The predominance of boys were from small Carolina towns, and because of the war program were necessarily younger than any of the classes have ever been. Add to this the presence of the Army, Navy, and Marines and you can see they were handicapped with the coeds. But that didn't discourage the frosh social life. The season ended with a formal dance for the class in Graham Memorial.

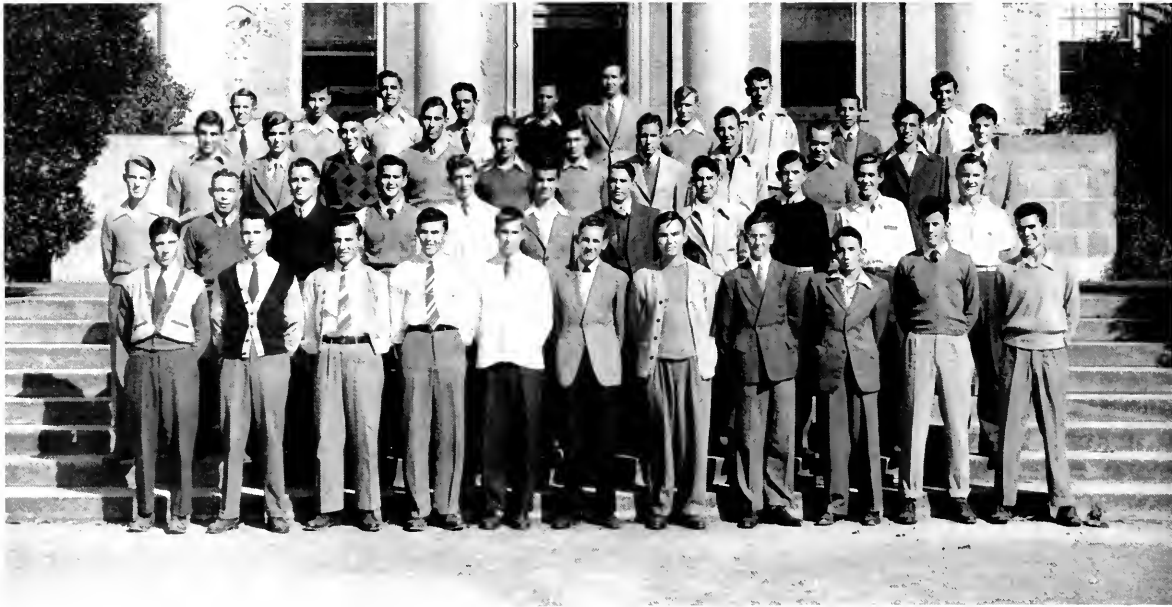

Composed of students who entered in the summer term, and others who came in September, the class was joined by V-12ers. Accepting a difficult situation as it was, the newcomers saw in Carolina much that older students, looking back, were missing.

The school, the organizations, the activities were new, different, exciting to new men. To the "oldtimers" the Carolina of pre-war years was gone.

It was upon the University's freshman group that the full burden of male participation in extra-curriculars fell. The younger men, training for a single quarter, took on jobs never before held by Freshmen. They found their way—and won their place.

FRESHMAN FACES

*T*HE FRESHMEN this year came to a uniformed Carolina in civilian clothes. The campus life they had read about and heard about was no longer in existence. Fraternity rush week was strictly a make-shift; the fall parties were few and far between; the night life wasn't worth sitting up for.

The Freshmen have had to make their good times at Carolina, for they came during a period of disorganization. They've enjoyed themselves, however, despite the lack of organized entertainment.

It's been hard for them to have the Carolina spirit, hard for them to study, because many of them are only marking time until they go into the service. But they have become Carolina students with enthusiasm, and they have added strength to a campus now going through its most critical days.

The Freshmen are war babies. They will not know a peacetime college life; they have done a good job of making the most of a wartime Carolina.

SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

JOE MONTESANTI, President

DEAN BEARD

LABS FOREVER.

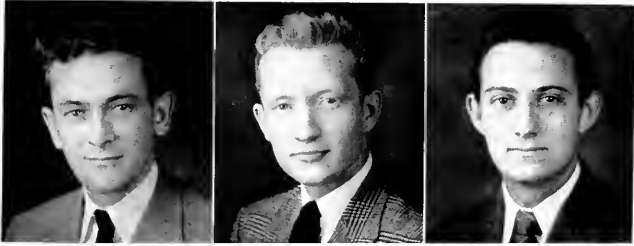

*P*HARMACEUTICAL ASPIRANTS at Carolina have had few moments of leisure since July 1, 1943. Yes, sad but true is the fact that the comparatively easy going "Joe College" days are gone for the duration. This applies particularly to the students of Pharmacy. These students are indeed a distinct group on the campus. They are surrounded on all sides by various units under entirely different circumstances. Practically the entire student body at present is working to some end, either reaching to "pluck out" a commission in some branch of service or preparing themselves to enter a practically non-competitive professional field in the near future. But not so for the Pharmacy boys. Their work was deemed important enough for speed-up program at their own expense, but not important enough to warrant a commission after graduation. Whether or not they will ever be able to reap any benefits from their work of the great three or four years is a complete mystery. Their draft status will be definitely 1-A upon the completion or failure of their work here. The distinction of the Pharmacy girls lies in the fact that they too are forced to keep up with the boys, since the school sponsors only a single program.

A new record was set this year in the coed enrollees as sixteen of the feminine sex began the long climb. However, the draft board played havoc with the number of boys, both newcomers and those who could not meet the requirements of the new program. As a result the total enrollment dropped from last year's 132 to 96. Considering the conditions facing these students at present this is not bad at all.

War or no war, the School of Pharmacy has refused to allow its social activities to die. Never to be forgotten was N.C.P.A.'s picnic out at Dr. Burlage's meadow during the summer session and the Halloween party given in Graham Memorial by Rho Chi and the Pharmacy Senate. Many life-time friendships were established at the "get-acquainted" parties and the receptions given by Kappa Psi, Phi Delta Chi, and Kappa Epsilon. Then on deck are the annual Pharmacy dances, scheduled for February 4th and 5th, and a Senior farewell party sponsored annually by N.C.P.A. to take place in March.

Taking everything into consideration, the school year of 43-44 has been a great success for the Pharmacy students. In coming through against probably the greatest conflicts in any single year in the history of the school, they have shown a great deal for which we at Carolina are very proud.

SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

*A*S CAROLINA's undergraduate schools stepped up their pace to meet the demands of wartime education, the University Medical School went on a year round basis to help train the doctors so urgently needed by our armed forces. The School's normal two-year curriculum was cut to a year and a half and faculty and students alike studied and worked full time with vacations reduced to almost nothing.

Since July 1, 1943, eighty of the school's total enrollment of eighty-five students have been in uniform. Army boys (as privates first class) met for "dawn patrol" at 7:50, attended military lectures, and drilled weekly, while Navy boys (as apprentice seamen) attended Naval lectures, took life easy, and managed to get to most of their classes on time.

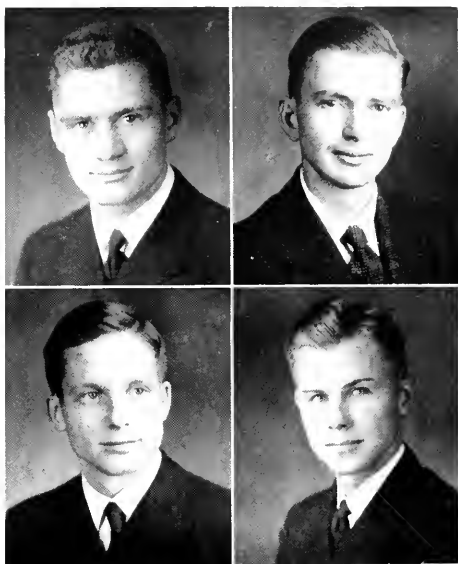

Highlight of the year for all was the student faculty day. Students Parham and Currin stole the show with classroom imitations of Dr. Billy and Dr. Bullitt, but the crowd found plenty of entertainment in the representations of Drs. Low and Andrews by students Gaul and Cox. In the late afternoon, festivities were transferred to Hogan's Lake where "further entertainment" was adequately provided.

HILDA BAILEY

STUDENT

*S*TUDENT SELF GOVERNMENT at the University of North Carolina has not always been a reality. A half century ago the student body was controlled entirely by the administration and as such it had few of the Carolina liberties that we enjoy today. Government by the students has grown from such a state to that of the present in which the students control virtually all of their activities.

Over a period of many generations the students have encouraged a disposition in the faculty to yield authority to students whenever a request for authority is accompanied by a sincere desire for responsibility. In such a manner the present Student Government was conceived.

The Student Legislature, the Student Council and the President of the Student Body are the legislative, judicial, and executive agencies of Student Government. Formerly the Student Council and its Chairman held all final powers of Student Government. Through the years, however, these powers have been democratically distributed to several other student organizations representing more students.

Under the present system of government the Student Legislature is charged with representing the student body as a congress and enacting such legislation as conditions warrant. The Student Council is charged not only with the judicial powers of enforcing the legislation but is also the supreme court of the campus. The Student Council hears all cases involving violations of the Honor System or of the Campus Code of acceptable conduct. The President of the Student Body acts as the executive agency and as such is Chairman of the Student Council. He also represents the Student Body by automatic membership on many of the student government organizations not directly connected with the three main branches of Student Government. He has full access to the floor of the Legislature at all times. A two-thirds vote of the Student Legislature is required to override the Student Council in passing a bill vetoed by the Council.

JOHN M. ROBINSON, President

DENMOND HAMMOND, President

GOVERNMENT

The principal problems of the student government organizations in the present times is one of representation. Under a wartime program the personnel of the student organizations is changing so rapidly that few capable student leaders have the opportunity to develop. Because of this the Student Council has been diligent in the selection of council representatives so the student body will be assured in future generations of having men to represent and lead them that ably fulfill the requirements for student leadership.

Also because of the representation problem, the Student Council is endeavoring to establish a leaders' school for the education and instruction of those capable students who desire to take part in student self government at Carolina.

The extent to which any student generation can realize the principles of student government is limited. Student Government varies with the students who are governing and with the circumstances affecting the vigor with which students assume authority and responsibility. However, as the generations come and go, each should strive to pass on to the next the best of student government. Only then will there be no limit upon the degree to which student self government might be realized under favorable conditions.

WOMEN'S GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

THE COEDS BEGAN THEIR YEAR with a well organized Student Government headed by Muriel Upchurch. Working hard to maintain and improve the new permanent Women's Government Association, the girls began with enthusiasm and carried this with them throughout the year.

First on the program was a week of orientation to help the new girls become familiar with the campus. After finding out about the departments in which they were interested, going to entertainments for their benefit, and tramping all over the grounds, the coeds felt they were really a part of Carolina's college life.

The coeds were introduced to W.G.A. at a mass meeting and learned that this is its third anniversary as the coeds own governing body. Set up on a tri-cameral basis, this body consists of an Honor Council, which serves as a court, a Senate, dealing with legislative matters, and an Interdormitory Council, which regulates dormitory life.

The Council for this year wanted to reach each girl individually and instill in her Carolina's way of living. Hall meetings were held by the Honor Council members to explain the Honor Code and Campus Code. After open discussion, the girls pledged themselves to abide by these codes throughout the year. The Council handled cases involving violations of these codes—which include lying, cheating, stealing, and unladylike conduct, infringement on the Interfraternity Agreement, and extreme social violations. Trying to help the girls in their adjustment to campus life, the Council was interested in making the students understand the ideals by which Carolina coeds are governed. It was an understanding body and handled each case with special care and consideration. The Honor Council commanded great respect from coeds with its fairness in dealing with all cases that came before it.

In an effort to stimulate the coeds' interest in their government, a bill was proposed requiring every girl to take the examination on Woman's Government. This bill was passed by a great majority and the tests were held in the fall.

The three bodies—Senate, Honor Council, and Interdormitory—cooperated in every important event. In a year in which the coeds gained such importance on campus, their government kept in step with this progress. Each girl on campus was a member and each contributed in her way to its unity.

STUDENT LEGISLATURE

TERRELL WEBSTER, Speaker

REID THOMPSON, Speaker

*F*ROM ITS BEGINNING IN 1938 as a new experiment in student government, the Student Legislature has steadily grown in power and efficiency until it now occupies the key position in administering the affairs of the student body.

The most important work in the short history of the Legislature was accomplished this year—the Student Government Reorganization Plan. While University officials and Naval authorities were making plans for the establishment of the V-12 Unit, Speaker Terrell Webster held conferences committee meetings, and informal bull sessions.

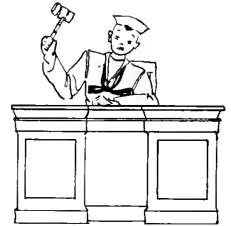

After much debate and pooling of opinions, the Legislature set up the provisions designed to carry Student Government through the war, with no pollution of its rich traditions. All class government was abolished, the Student Council and Student Legislature were revised to conform to the campus wartime situation, and measures for succession in the various offices were passed.

Greatest credit of the year goes to Speaker Terrell Webster—presiding with skill and impartiality over stormy sessions—long hours at committee meetings—a passion for hard work—and genuine devotion to the Legislature and the Student Body.

With four different military groups and 1800 civilian students on the campus, many new problems and increasingly broader responsibility confronts the Legislature. Proud of its record and enthusiastic in attacking current issues, the Legislature exercises its authority over campus affairs with careful deliberation and judicious action.

The Legislature has achieved the goal visioned by its founders in becoming the most powerful student control group ever known at Carolina.

WOMAN'S

WHEN THE COED SENATE began its session for the war torn year of 1943, few realized that this coed body would reach new height in activity of the Carolina campus.

Formed in the spring of 1941, as part of the revised Women's Government, its powers are to draw up the budget, pass on all expenditures in the Women's Government which includes Honor Council, Women's Athletic Association, and donations to all the subsidiary organizations. It is the Senate's duty to amend the Constitution of the Women's Government, supervise all coed elections, vote on social rules recommended by the Interdormitory Council and promote the general welfare of the women. The Senate stands as the major coed legislative body on the campus.

During the year, legislative action brought about an amendment passed by the whole coed body making a government examination compulsory to all new coeds on the campus. The budget gave added financial benefit to the Women's Athletic Association in order to promote athletic interest. A two hundred dollar scholarship fund was established for a Senior girl showing leadership and scholastic ability.

Since the men students on the campus held an unstable position due to the war, the coed body took on activities concerning both men and women, as is shown in the War Committee, a coordination body established by the Senate headed by Kitty Kelly.

This committee promotes Red Cross drives, Bond drives, and War Information centers at Carolina.

Officers are: Mary Lou Truslow, Speaker; Kitty Flanagan, Speaker Pro-Tem; Mac Hughes, Secretary; Fran Ferrier, Treasurer. Committee Chairmen were: Kay McGinsy, Lucy Kennedy, Betty Seligman, Helen Marie Camp, Sue Brubaker, Margaret Pickard, Jean Lockridge, Tommy Slayton, Carol Cobb, Alice Bell, Kay Roper, Kitty Flanagan.

DEBATE COUNCIL

AS CAROLINA entered its third year of war, the University Debate Council found that its most important function, that of intercollegiate debating, had been narrowed by discontinuance of debate activity on other campuses.

Though troubled by transportation difficulties, the council for the first time in the history of the University has run on a year round basis. The first part of the summer Carolina held a dual debate with Georgia Tech. Howard Ennis and Clyde Rollins met Tech's affirmative here while E. O. Brogden and Aaron Johnson journeyed to Atlanta to uphold the negative side of the World Federation theory. Carolina split the meet with Tech winning the Atlanta debate but losing to them in Chapel Hill.

E. O. BROGDEN, President

The highlight of the year came when twenty-two members of the squad attended the 7th Annual Student Legislature Assembly in Raleigh. The Carolina delegation successfully introduced four bills. One of the bills concerned the removal of a painting of Henry Clay from behind the Speaker's desk and replacing it with that of a famous North Carolinian. Introduced in jest the bill caused one of the hottest debates of the assembly. The other bills concerned an amendment to the State Constitution giving the Governor veto power; an amendment to the U. S. Constitution giving the Senate power to ratify a treaty by a majority vote; a resolution calling for Federal financial aid for public education. E. O. Brogden was elected Speaker of the House, Dan Davis was elected Parliamentarian.

rian. In the Senate Reid Thompson was elected President and Mary Lou Truslow Parliamentarian.

This year Carolina has met Lenoir-Rhyne, Wake Forest, Appalachian, Davidson and E. C. T. C. Tournament debating has suffered somewhat but the squad attended the Grand Eastern Debate Tournament.

Realizing a need for more activity on the campus the Council decided to reestablish and sponsor the N. C. Chapter of Tau Kappa Alpha, national honorary forensic fraternity. Eight members were tapped on the basis of superior debating ability, public speaking, and scholastic averages.

For the second year the all campus debate tournament was held. Many organizations including the Di, Phi, C.P.U., I.R.C., C.I.C.A., Phi Delta Theta, and the Town Girls, entered teams to discuss the national topic: Should the U. S. participate in establishing and maintaining an international police force upon the defeat of the Axis. The council has given financial aid to other discussion groups in the hope that they will be better able to stimulate interest in debate and discussion.

WOMEN'S INTERDORMITORY COUNCIL

*T*HE WOMEN'S INTERDORMITORY COUNCIL is comprised of the dormitory presidents and the sorority house managers, its total membership now being eleven. The Council acts as a link between the girls, the Dean of Women, and the hostesses by interpreting social regulations, recommending changes in these regulations to the Senate, and supervising the Judicial House Councils which help enforce house rules.

The functions of the Council have increased considerably due to the change of the University from a peacetime campus to a wartime campus. One of these functions has been to assist in furnishing facilities for recreation by opening the small parlors in each dormitory for dancing. Also the council supervised furnishing, equipping, and painting study rooms in the dormitories. In the spring of the year the Interdormitory Council contributed a sum of money to each dormitory to be used for any necessary improvements.

Through these activities the Council strove to make a definite contribution to the welfare of the women students in the University.

PUBLICATIONS UNION BOARD

*T*O CAROLINA'S three publications, a wartime campus presented the biggest problems and challenge. Entrusted with the job of "finding the ways and the money" to continue the Tar Heel, Carolina Magazine, and YACKETY YACK, the Publications Union Board found itself with reduced funds and increased costs.

But despite strained conditions, the Board voted unanimously to continue the magazine and yearbook. Only cut came in the Tar Heel, which was forced to a weekly by "three fatal sisters of mechanics, manpower, and finances."

By the end of the fall, there was a way out for the weekly paper and the Tar Heel budget, providing twice-weekly publication was approved.

In a year of drastic change, the publications had hewed close to the line of normalcy, had continued to serve the campus needs.

Board members were: Faculty—William Wells, E. H. Hartsell, J. M. Lear. Students—Nancy Smith, President; Tyler Nourse, Treasurer; Jud Kinberg, Secretary; Opie Charters.

THE 1944

THE JOB IS DONE. The lights no longer burn late in the office, the typewriters are silent and all that remains is the BOOK and the trash and scraps from a hundred first starts.

The P. U. Board met in July and was almost ready to give up the idea of an annual for the year, due to what they thought were insurmountable obstacles—reduced civilian enrollment—scarcity of materials—and lack of Navy co-operation, but the nucleus of an editorial staff thought otherwise. The wide awake printing and engraving representatives, Frank Fleming and Bill Deighton, had made preparations for getting the necessary materials back in May—the second Navy pay day saw an all day subscription campaign fought by first Managing Editor Arthur Persky, Ed Goodman, and a host of Coed Circulation Assistants—September brought an unexpectedly high civilian enrollment and life saver Business Managers Harris Knight and Dan Bagley—the P.U. Board passed a budget with non-essentials slashed and engraving appropriations raised and the BOOK was on the way.

Senior V-12 Editor Vincent Anderson joined the staff and rapidly cleared his section from the thorny path, the V-12 group pictures were made and Ed Goodman's shouts for thirty-five cents per man faded away.

And then the work began in earnest. October passed swiftly. Photography Editor Tyler Nourse and Assistants Bob Baker and Jimmy Robinson swung into action and flash bulbs garnered from a New York friend flickered throughout the campus while Senior Editor Mary Rankin McKethan plugged at the task of inducing Wootten-Moulton to disgorge the hundreds of Senior Class pictures, and first Fraternity Editor Bob Cozart rushed frantic letters trying to get the Greeks to assemble for group portraits. Class group pictures were completed—scarcity of materials made them necessary—and fraternities had to be cut to one page in a slenderized edition of the BOOK—October neared a close and the Editor took a badly needed week's rest along with the rest of the Navy men.

YACKETY YACK

The first half of November was the most trying time for the BOOK. Organizations pictures all had to be made in two weeks, and a confusion seemingly impenetrable began to grow in the two-by-four office called home on the second floor of Graham Memorial as Activities Editors Jean Lyons and Betty Walters rolled up their sleeves and yanked copy in bodily, while typists dashed thither and yon and prints came up from the darkroom in an increasing stream. Art Editor Kappy Watters rushed the drawing job and Associate Editor Sara Yokley finished up the first section—new Managing Editor Cookie Marett took charge of the office and the maze began to clear away. Margy Martorell completed the signing of organizational contracts; Classes Editor Sam Latty got to work on his section; helper Betsy Dickson joined the staff; and the YACKETY YACK beauty dance, brain child of Dance Editors Margy Martorell and Margaret Fountain, passed by. Jack of all publications Ernie Frankel took on the fraternity job and Mary Rankin McKethan completed the difficult Senior Class section and helped whip the organization into shape, while Milly Johnson scored the pharmacy section.

The first of December brought the end of the football section, Baxter Sapp's photo work, Joe Denker's and Millie Hosch's girls' dorms pictures, Lloyd Koppel's work on the sports section and exams which caused the staff to drop off like flies. Vernon Highfill dropped in and took over a badly needed darkroom spot and the last minute work of taking winter sports shots and arranging pictures began. The last days before Christmas, when the Editor and Ernie Frankel held a four-day sleepless deadline siege with the help of town students Marianne and Ted Browne, Business Manager Harris Knight and Fred Kanter, were the hardest. Christmas vacation over, the section montages were finished, the last bit of copy went to press and the BOOK was complete.

CAROLINA

WITH A WOMAN as its Editor

for the first time in a 100-year-old history, a wartime budget and a slice to a 28-page issue, the Carolina Mag continues to satisfy and entertain the student body.

Greeting the new students on registration day in the fall was a Special V-12 Issue, edited by Marine Pvt. H. C. Cranford. But before plans had been formulated for the October issue, Cranford was in Parris Island, and the editorship fell into the hands of another Marine, Ernie Frankel. Frankel, experienced publications' man, turned out a brightly illustrated mag on the theme, "Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow." In the later elections, a precedent was broken when a coed, Lois Ribelin Cranford, was elected to head the staff.

Filled with a balanced combination of serious and humorous writing, the Mag presented varied material for its readers. Each issue included feature articles, short stories, poetry, and jokes. Highlight of the Mag is the attractive center-spread which usually features the theme of the issue. Each issue is splashed with "professional-like" shots of glamorous coeds, lively cartoons, and well-drawn illustrations. Expert makeup won for it the coveted Pacemaker's Award in 1942, as the outstanding college magazine in the country.

The Mag, published entirely by students, is free from faculty censorship. This liberty affords publication of a magazine which may contain articles of praise or criticism. The purpose of its Editors is to faithfully record the trend of each school year by printing the best in student journalistic and creative work; therefore producing an honest, enjoyable magazine.

The DAILY TAR HEEL is dead! Long live the Tar Heel!

For the first time in its fifty years of publication the official student newspaper of the University of North Carolina ceased rolling off the presses as a daily. Due to manpower shortage at the printshop, and to a very depleted budget caused by a complete new setup in student fee income, publishing a paper six times a week became a temporary impossibility.

First came the weekly. Under the short-lived Editorship of Walter Damtoft, A.S. V-12, the Tar Heel became a weekly, increased in space as it decreased in issues. Staunch, conservative Damtoft settled the foundations, steered the paper through safe middle of the road channels. He took over the reins of the Editorship in May as a civilian student; he turned them over to a new Editor in October as a Navy student on active duty.

Then came the first fall time elections in the history of student life at Carolina, and from those elections rose the first coed to edit U.N.C.'s student paper, Kat Hill. During her reign on the second deck of Graham Memorial the paper became a bi-weekly with hopes of building up, step by step, back to a weekly. The Editor's office changed from a pale white to a livid chartreuse: headlines appeared on the editorial page.

The last of the old-time publication men, Ernie Frankel, started off as Managing Editor of the paper for the 1943-44 year. When Marine duties forced him to resign, the post was taken over by his fraternity brother, Jud Kinberg, stand by of all Carolina publications. Kinberg left school at Christmas, and was succeeded by former Sports Editor Lloyd Koppel, N.R.O.T.C., who successfully combined Navy requirements and Tar Heel duties.

Sara Yokley's name was moved up from Feature Editor to Associate Managing Editor, a job which included the self-inflicted duty of repainting the Managing Editor's office, along with the more serious work of "covering" South building.

Following Koppel as Sports Editor, V-12er Horace Carter took over the "most popular page in the paper."

Staff changes were almost perpetual. Students came and left the University so suddenly that there was very little consistency in the names in the mast head. Staff members were harder than ever to find with only a few experienced TH-men left to teach the newcomers the ropes.

The Tar Heel began to lose its two-year policy of conservatism. It tended to become the more radical paper of two years back. It attempted to present all facts of the news on its front pages, and then take sides with current issues and blast them out on the edit pages. Columns, far from consistent, ranged from the old C.P.U. Roundtable to Rice and Gin to the W'eary W'omen and Curtains Going Up. Columnists changed as often as reporters, and the edit page gave a great deal of its space to publicizing letters to the Editor, and the answers to those letters.

The decrease in the times of publication of the Tar Heel meant no decrease in the campus criticism of the paper. Students griped about it as usual; they griped about the news coverage, they griped about biased opinions, they griped about the circulation. But they read the paper. Some said a weekly paper was as bad as no paper at all, some said a bi-weekly was no better. A few praised both. It faced problems which had never existed before; it made mistakes. But the campus felt its service through the year of its highest crisis, the Tar Heel served the campus, and served it well.

YOUNG MEN'S

*T*HE CAROLINA YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION is the third oldest student organization on the campus, organized in 1859, and for the past several years has had a supporting membership of 1500 students. Its emblem is the triangle, symbolizing the inseparable unity of Spirit, Mind, and Body; seeking to stimulate growth in appreciation of the spiritual significance of all activity of life under the principle of the best life of all.

The "Y" stresses the service motive in its operation on the campus and less than any other organization seeks to advertise its wares or to promote its own popularity. It raised the funds and planted a service building in the center of the campus and offers its use to all organizations and individuals, and its services to the University, the Churches and the community. The old building is all too small but takes probably the heaviest load of any building on campus. Plans are drafted for a new and adequate building at the earliest possible post-war date.

*JACK ELLIS, President
HARRY COMER, Secretary*

With better facilities the "Y" will enlarge its service to personal and social needs of the students, to help interpret the tradition and the values of Carolina living, and assistance to the student in building for himself a balanced life and personal philosophy by which he may live more satisfactorily on the campus and after he leaves the campus.

In all of these efforts the "Y" works hand in hand with other student organizations, the Administration, the Churches, and other agencies of the community.

An outstanding phase of "Y" work is the Freshmen Friendship Council, an organization designed to serve the needs of the first year men on campus. It meets every Monday evening for business action and a planned program.

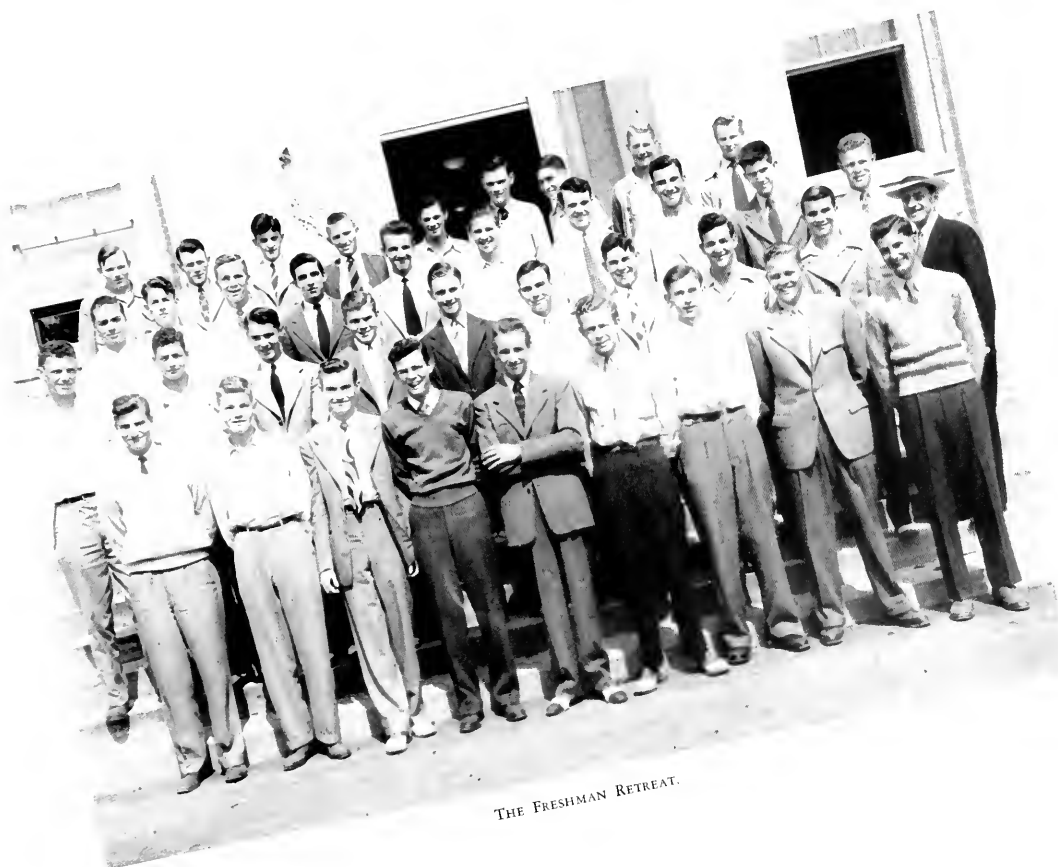

Our "Y" is duly affiliated with the National organization and the World Student Christian Federation, which relates our student members to all Y.M.C.A.'s in more than sixty countries of the world. The International Y.M.C.A. celebrates its 100th anniversary in 1944.

SOUND AND FURY, the Carolina "problem child," was revived this year to provide entertainment on a campus striving to retain that old Carolina "spirit." Army and Navy students joined hands with the civilians to present "Gadabout," an original musical comedy written by Co-Directors Jack Ellis and Mary Louise Huse.

One of the best received shows ever presented on the Carolina campus, "Gadabout" played for a three-day run late in November with Betty Don Sweat and Harold Gould in the lead spots, lyrics sung by Joan Kosberg, music under the direction of Al Bergman and a chorus drilled by Libby Izen. A cast of more than fifty did a superb job in backing up the plot.

*T*HE HILLEL FOUNDATION was formed under the sponsorship of B'nai B'rith, national Jewish fraternal organization, in 1936. It has as its aims the stimulation of interest in Jewish religious, cultural, and social ideals among the students.

Rabbi Maurice Schatz is Hillel Director, aided in the conduct of affairs by the elected officers and council members. Each member of the council heads a committee of interested students which sponsors one phase of the Foundation's activities. There are Religious, Cultural, Zionist, Entertainment, War Service, and Social Welfare Committees. In addition, the Hillel Foundation stresses particular services to the service men on the campus and is a medium of cooperation with other campus and religious groups.

The department of dramatic art boasts some of the most eminent figures in the contemporary theatre world. "Proff" Koch and Paul Green are bywords in associations of modern dramatists.

The Playmakers have their own theatre building on the campus and their Forest Theatre is an ideal setting for out-of-door productions. They have an adequate workshop for the construction and painting of scenery and for the making of costumes and a radio studio for the production of radio plays.

JAU CHAPTER OF CHI DELTA PHI, national honorary creative writing fraternity for women, was organized on this campus in June, 1941. Election into the group is based on outstanding ability and interest in creative writing. Its purpose is to encourage a high standard of literary work among its members and to promote wide interest in creative writing in the University.

At weekly meetings members read and discuss their work. Group and individual experiments are tried in the various literary forms and in individual treatment of identical themes and subject matter.

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

CHARLES HARRINGTON, President

THE I.R.C. IS A non-partisan, non-political organization whose purpose is to encourage interest in world problems and to present to the campus statesmen who can give information on various international problems. The I.R.C. has endeavored to lay the groundwork for a farsighted understanding of the immense problem of post-war adjustment and a better understanding of the United Nations.

Meetings are held on Sunday nights. These meetings encourage active participation and thought by members and guests who wish to delve into important issues of the day.

Joseph B. Grew, ex-Ambassador to Japan, opened the I.R.C. programs for the year with a discussion on the Japanese situation. Forums are sponsored by the club throughout the year. Appearing on the I.R.C. forums are both students and faculty members who demonstrate a conflict in well informed opinion.

Officers this year were: Clyde Rollins, President; Ann West, Vice-President; Ida May Pettigrew, Secretary; Hubert Weber, Treasurer.

First Row: SMITH, N.; ROTHCHILD, R.; PETTIGREW, I. M.; HARRINGTON, C.; WEST, A.; MACKIE, W.; ALBERT, A.

TOWN GIRLS' ASSOCIATION

*A*LL GIRLS not living in dormitories, sorority houses, or Archer house, and attending the University are automatically members of the Town Girls' Association. The organization is a connection link between the town girls and the campus, and its aim is to make these girls feel they have a place in University life and activities.

The girls have stressed war work in their program throughout the year. Besides rolling bandages and serving as hostesses at the Community Center, the girls organized a Christmas Holiday entertainment program for the Pre-Flight cadets by recruiting all available "woman-power" for dates and by giving a holiday dance for the boys.

Officers: Carol Cobb, President; Ruth Patterson, Vice-President; Ju Ju Newsome, Secretary; Rita Smith, Treasurer; Hilda Weaver, Representative to the Honor Council; Margaret Picard and Carol Cobb, Representatives to the Senate; Marianne Browne, Representative to the Athletic Council and to the University Club.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

*T*HIS YEAR THE WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB has been bigger and better than ever before. Meeting every Monday and Wednesday afternoon, they were able to carry a heavier program than in previous years.

The first performance of the year was a program of Christmas Carols. The following week, collaborating with the Choral Club and the Men's Glee Club, they presented Bach's "Magnificat." Those who had heard the "Magnificat" last year agree that this year it was even better.

In winter the Glee Club cooperated in producing "Yeoman of the Guard," an operetta by Gilbert and Sullivan.

In spring came the annual concert, and the cantata at graduation.

Officers: Sue Brubaker, President; Lois McCauley, Secretary; Fran Ferrier, Treasurer.

Y. W. C. A.

MEETING THE PERSONAL needs of women at Carolina in war time has been the aim of the Young Women's Christian Association this year. As part of a world-wide organization, the Y.W.C.A. is dedicated to the development of Christian principles in personal and social living. This national purpose is translated into local objectives through programs of fellowship, discussion, work, and worship.

Outstanding examples of putting these ideals into practice have included: A Men-Women Relations program for Carolina Women, cooperation with community groups in working to establish a Negro nursery, vocational guidance during orientation, collection of toys and clothing for war relief, publication of a weekly news-sheet.

Fellowship suppers, community sings, vespers, recreational programs have been sponsored with the Y.M.C.A. and other campus organizations.

Officers: Beth Chappell, President; Margaret Pickard, Vice-President; Barbara Staff, Secretary; Alice Willis, Treasurer; Janet Hoover and Catherine Ferrall, Resident Secretaries.

HOUSE PRIVILEGES BOARD

PAUL SIMMONS, Chairman

THE HOUSE PRIVILEGES BOARD, as it has recently been set up by the Student Legislature, consists of eleven members. Five male students come from the Executive Committee of the Interfraternity Council, five are chosen from the coed population by the Speaker of the Coed Senate, and the remaining male student is the Representative of the two Pharmacy Fraternities.

It is the Board's job to set up agreements between fraternities and coeds whereby the coeds may visit fraternity houses. Any violations of this agreement are tried by the Board and punishments given out depending upon the degree of violation of the agreement. The Board has no control over the offending coeds and deals only with the offending fraternity. Every member of the coed student body, the members of the Board, and members of the Interfraternity Council are honor bound to uphold the agreement.

CAROLINA INDEPENDENT COED ASSOCIATION

THE CAROLINA INDEPENDENT COED ASSOCIATION was organized by the "Stray Greeks" and Independent Coeds who felt the need of a coordinating body on campus. Its purposes are to create and stimulate interest and participation in campus affairs, to promote fellowship among the coeds through social activities, and to provide organized support for worthy candidates for coed offices.

In order to achieve its purposes, the C.I.C.A. entered the winning team in the campus debate tournament, placed second in the poster contest, and sponsored a political tea to introduce campus candidates for coed offices. C.I.C.A.'s gave a Hallow'een party and a dance. Members of the organization participated in a Christmas Caroling party given by the Pi Phis for the other coeds.

Officers for this year are: Lucy Lee Kennedy, President; Peg Moseley and Irene McCain, Vice-Presidents; Ida Mae Pettigrew, Secretary; Betty Seligman, Treasurer.

CAROLINA POLITICAL UNION

LEE BRONSON, Chairman

1943, A PRECEDENT BREAKING YEAR for all campus organizations, found the Carolina Political Union with summer programs, members in V-12 and A.S.T.P. uniforms, and the first coed chairman.

The Sunday night sessions were as lively as any in the eight-year history of the Union. The warmest discussions were on coal strikes, subsidies, bureaucracy, the State Department, and presidential prospects. The C.P.U. challenged the I.R.C. to an "Information, Please," program, which was won by the Union.

Known for hard work, Lee Bronson proved to be an excellent leader in the most critical period of the Union's history. She was aided by Billy Britt, Marine private, as Vice-Chairman; Madison Wright, Secretary, and Bob Rouse, N.R.O.T.C., Treasurer.

The feature of the year's program was the visit of Vice-President Henry Wallace to the campus in December who spoke to an overflowing audience in Memorial Hall.

Upon Miss Bronson's graduation, Private Bob Rosenast, U.S.M.C.R., from New Jersey was elected Chairman.

Officers: Lee Bronson, Chairman; Billy Britt, Vice-Chairman; Madison Wright, Secretary, and Bob Rouse, Treasurer.

PHARMACY SENATE

*T*HE PHARMACY SENATE was organized by E. A. Brecht, Associate Professor of Pharmacy, in February of 1940. His slow, easy-going personality and a brilliant aptitude for all things pharmaceutical have won for him the respect and friendship of all pharmacy students.

It is the purpose of the Pharmacy Senate to stimulate and foster an increased knowledge and appreciation of pharmacy by the free discussion of its various phases, to develop the responsibilities and self-confidence of leadership, not only in respect to pharmacy but also in respect to the community, by affording the opportunity to learn the art of prepared and impromptu speech, and to promote inter-class friendship and co-operation within the School of Pharmacy.

Though youngest of its fellow organizations in the School of Pharmacy, it has, nevertheless, earned a reputation for leadership.

DIALECTIC SENATE

THE DIALECTIC SENATE is Carolina's oldest organization and the second oldest literary organization in the United States. Founded in 1795, it is rich in tradition and lore and has an enviable record of contributions to the campus. Traditionally, it has taken the lead in meeting University needs, being the first organization to present dramatic productions, carry on debating, and with the Philanthropic Assembly, and substantially endow the library.

The Senate does not limit itself to discussion but has both investigating and executory committees; to gather and present facts and information and to carry out the resolutions of the Senate.

A large percentage of Senate members have used their training to achieve positions of honor and distinction in the state and nation. The Dialectic Senate Hall is lined with portraits of its former members—Cabinet Officers, Congressmen, Governors, and one President of the United State—James K. Polk.

Officers for the year are—Summer and fall quarters: Rene Bernard, President; Buddy Glenn, President Pro-Tem; Ida May Pettigrew and Wesley Bagby, Critics; Margaret Towel and George Hurst, Clerks; Barbara Swift, Sergeant-at-Arms; Bill Ormand and Howard Ennis, Treasurers. Winter quarter: Bill Crisp, President; Edgar Ormand, President Pro-Tem; Kitty Kelly, Critic; Margaret Towel, Clerk; Buddy Glenn, Sergeant-at-Arms; Barbara Swift, Treasurer.

First Row: HYLTON, T.; YOUNG, T.; HURST, G.; ORMAND, R.; BERNARD, R.; SWIFT, B.; GLENN, R.; TOWER, T.; ADAMS, A.

Second Row: MACKIE, W.; FLANIGAN, K.; BROWN, R.; KELLY, K.; HURWITZ, S.; STERN, N.; SAGER, D.; BROWN, P.; MCCAIN, I.; DURGIN, W.; ROTHCHILD, R.

Third Row: WAFF, G.; GALACIA, M.; SMITH, S.; PERRY, F.; HELLER, B.; MORGAN, B.; WHITFIELD; WINTERS, R.; CRANFORD, W.; PERLMUTER, B.; CRISP, B.; TENNEY; GOLDING, H.; LOGAN, J.

PHI ASSEMBLY

*A*LTHOUGH THE PHI ASSEMBLY is one of the two oldest literary societies in the nation, its age and tradition do not mean that it is antiquated as far as ideas and actions are concerned. This year the Phi has taken the lead on the campus as an outlet for the expression of student opinion.

Deviating from its former procedure of having formal debates on topics of State, National and International interest, the Phi has presented discussion concerning only questions of campus itself. Highlight of the year's activity was the student-faculty panel held on the "Proposed Combination of the V-12 trimester with the civilian quarter." Participating in discussion were: Dean F. F. Bradshaw, Dean D. D. Carroll, Dean A. W. Hobbs, Dr. A. S. Newsome, Kat Hill, Turk Newsome, and Pvt. Harris Knight, U.S.M.C.R.

FAIZON THOMPSON, President Pro-Tempore

THE PHI IN MEETING.

Other topics discussed by the Phi concerned problems resulting from the war-time transition on campus. Granting later hours to coeds who have now assumed a more responsible position in student activities; abolition of the coed point system limiting the number of positions which one could hold; renovation of the Inter-Town Council; Tenure of Residence qualifications for voting and holding office; the status of V-12s in student government; and extension of the powers of the house privileges board were among the many topics which the Phi brought before the campus.

In keeping with its policy of teaching students to speak well, the Assembly has endeavored through its discussions of questions which are familiar to the average student to accomplish this purpose. Modeled after the House of Representatives of the State of North Carolina, the Phi adheres to strict parliamentary order.

The Phi added to its projects of the year, debates with the Dilectis Senate and the Debate squad. As in the past the Phi entered teams in the All-Campus Debate Tournament and made an excellent showing.

Officers: E. O. Brogden, Jr., and Frank Earnheart, Speaker; Faizon Thompson, Speaker Pro-Tem; Frances Erwin, Sergeant-at-Arms; Sue Johnson, Reading Clerk; Roger Hall, Treasurer; Clyde Rollins, Debate Council Representative.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

THE UNIVERSITY Men's Glee Club has been greatly reinforced this year by the Army and Navy men on the campus.

Because of transportation difficulties the concert field will be very limited; however, there are plans being made to present concerts at some of the nearby colleges and universities. The joint presentations with the Woman's Glee Club of Bach's "Magnificat" and with the Playmakers and the Women's Glee Club of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Yeoman of the Guard," will highlight the campus activities for this year.

Officers: Jack Anderson, President; George McLemore, Vice-President; T. E. Sikes, Jr., Secretary-Treasurer.

FRESHMAN CABINET

Seated: DAVID HALL; JAMES F. (TURK) NEWSOME, Head Counselor; GENE BYRD.
Second Row: LANCASTER; BROWNE; MACKIE; EATON; JACKSON; FLAXLER; TRAYNHAM; WARD; LORD; LEE; WEBER.

THE FRESHMAN CABINET is analogous to the old Interdormitory Council, and is composed of upper-classmen and the freshman dormitory councilmen in Carr and Steele dormitories.

Turk Newsome is President of the Cabinet.

COED INNER SANCTUM

Alderman—Kenan—McIver—Spencer

*V*ERY FEW INDEED are the masculine figures which have penetrated through the upper realms of the four coed dormitories, wherein the feminine populace of the Hill spends the secretive portion of their behind-the-scenes lives. Other than the radio repair man, the electrician and the burly guy from the railroad express, the only pairs of long trousers allowed to stride down these hallowed halls are those worn by the rugged individuals from the woman's phys ed department who spend their time perpetuating the ideas brought forth by Thor in his essays on Walden Pond.

This year's medal of distinction under fire was earned by the lone pre-flight cadet whose date had told him she resided in 312 Alderman. Wasting no time in calling for his bit of fluff, the lad in question entered the side door of the dorm, trecked up to the third floor with no embarrassing incidents intervening to impede his progress. But when the lady answered the knock on her door in a state of about 23-minutes-before-being-dressed, the cadet made an exit which never even bothered with the steps.

Bull sessions, through which the coed has reached her fame and her reputation, take place almost any time anywhere within the privacy of the dorms. Flocking into a centralized room, gathering around the laundry rooms while roommates scorch and scrub, coeds don't need an opening idea for a session starter. Bull sessions in the coed dorms just naturally begin with the word MEN. From there on they may progress to the more serious discussions of philosophy, history, or world-problems, but the ones over which more midnight oil is burned, over which more cigarettes are smoked are strictly the sessions on the men-in-our-lives.

Although the building department denies it with every available breath, it's now an axiom that the reason the halls in these havens of feminine pulchritude are slanted, low toward the ceilings, high at the centers, is to give the coeds some sense of balance when they come in from a typical date with a "Carolina Gentleman."

NIGHT"

Crowded conditions reigned in the coed dorms, too, this year. Two-girl rooms were converted into boudoirs for three girls. There was always the exceptional coed who wanted to study, her second roommate who wanted to turn in, and the third one who was out working on Carolina publications, or on Sound and Fury or at the Playmaker theatre—she's the gal who ambled in just as the other two had finally settled their arguments.

Housemothers were the same this year, only more so. There were a couple who were very well liked by those who liked them. Then of course there was the most infamous one of all who raged through the year even as before.

Hall characters provided entertainment for all. The meek, mild coed always engrossed in taking volumes of notes in math 3, dropped aside her cloak of shyness when she dropped her outside wearing apparel. One dorm will never forget the girl who tore into a room down the hall, crying, "Fan-nie. Fan-nie. Look, I want to show you my new non-rationed girdle, I wanted to show it to you first of all the rest because we—because we—because we study our botany notes together all of the time!"

The most popular man to drop into the dorms was the mailman. He came twice a day and offered the additional service of telling a lucky coed beforehand what her postcard from the Corporal in Mississippi said. . . . The most unpopular figure throughout the dormitories were those "brains" who decided that nothing was worse than over-cutting eight o'clock classes, and tried to convert sleeping friends to their way of thinking.

"BEHIND THE PAINT"

Some of the kids in the dorms knew everybody else in their special home by name. Others of them never even saw the girls any further down than three rooms past their own. . . . The blonde coed photographer and her drafted assistant roamed through all the dorms snapping hair-down action in real life. . . . House meetings once in a while drew the coeds together, but only until each could think up a valid excuse for leaving. . . . The House Council meetings down on the first floor were the most dreaded and most fearful summons of the year. . . . And there was always one coed who signed out at eight, again at ten, and spent her evenings in for a while as a result of our Honor Council rulings.

Life in the coed dorms was much the same this year as it has always been before. But there was more life in the coed dorms this year—there were far more people living in them. The coed may be exposed in her natural habits through the eyes of the camera and through the pages of the Tar Heel and Mag, but there will always be a part of life in a coed dorm which will remain a secret from all men, now and forever.

TRI-DELTA FOUNDERS.

A Δ Π RUSHING.

WITH A NEW SORORITY coming into existence and fraternities receding into the background because of the war, the sororities have taken on added significance this year.

Serving as a link between the four sororities and the administration the Pan-Hellenic Council cut out the usual gala Pan-Hellenic Ball and donated the money to the Red Cross. To further conform to the policies of a wartime campus, rushing expenses were cut down.

The Council with the C.I.C.A. sponsored a tea for the coeds during orientation week to encourage a closer relationship between the women's Greek organizations and the independent girls on campus. Mass meetings, scholarship cups for the sorority with the highest average, compiling rush rules and regulating rushing, publishing a handbook of sorority information, and inter-sorority picnic honoring the new sorority and the Stray Greeks, and other inter-sorority activities—all these are a part of the function of the Pan-Hellenic Council.

 Lived ten Chi Omegas who were happily stowed
 Away in their beds when their doorbell rang
 And the ghost came in with a slam and a bang.
 "Oh, say, who are you," the Duchess cried—
 "I have come to predict," the shade replied,
 "You," he said with a leer seeing Peg and Nananne—
 "Will ascend to fame as two great stage hands—

SORORITIES PROSPERED

WHILE OTHER social organizations had their breath choked by the hand of Mars, Carolina's four sororities flourished. A rise in coed enrollment sent chapter rosters climbing, too, and before 1943 had slipped away, the Greek letter houses were crowded with pledges and activity.

They entertained. Using ingenuity, most houses sponsored open houses, picnics, small parties, and dances. Navy, Army, and Marine students spent many evenings in the parlors of Pi Beta Phi, Alpha Delta Pi, Chi Omega, and the Tri Deltas.

They worked. The Red Cross, Girl Scouts, Church groups, U.S.O., and Y.W.C.A. found willing helpers as the sorority women combined with dormitory friends in getting essential jobs done. Campaigns were lead by women. Programs were presented by women. New posts were filled by women. It was a year of change, and the sororities easily changed too.

For perhaps the first time, sorority women acted to bind, not only their own members, but their University more firmly to their cause.

CHARLES CLARK, Secretary-Treasurer

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

THE COUNCIL held the reins, but looked all year for somewhere to drive their war horses. There was no straight stretch. The track was untried. And soon even some of the thoroughbreds dropped out.

But the men did much to furnish a medium through which all the riders could exchange ideas, discuss problems, solve new puzzles brought about by a heavy handicap. They cooperated with the Navy, and gained rushing permission. They worked with the Administration, and were given social privileges. They acted together, and found places to establish quarters.

What was gone was the spirit, the color, the tradition, the play-and-gay times that once marked fraternity life. Naval trainees didn't have the hours to spend learning the "game." Many—displaced from their old grounds—took over makeshifts. But with the old quarters gone, the closeness, the fellowship, the pride, the loyalty began to go too. And although the riders tried to bind and heal, they had no aid. War had taken away the means by which such things live.

It was toward the future that the men began to look, toward the clear day when the track would no longer be muddy and the chances so slim. And so they kept their records in shape, their hopes up, and held out for a new day and a change in the odds.

AVERY HALL

They left the halls barren, the rooms cold. They poked away the chapter seal and the founders' picture, the old records and the scrapbook. They told the houseboy and the cook and the waiters there'd be no work tomorrow, and had the phone disconnected, the lights turned off. The red leather sofa, where various degrees of morality had been observed for half a dozen years, was sold to a second-hand store. Some colored man bought the piano with the bottle stains still there. One sentimental guy clipped a piece of leather from the blue divan in the library. There was nothing to do with the memorial marker, so it stayed on the fireplace . . . and then they left the doors open and walked away. • A few fellows looked back, but most of them walked on. They'd be back, they thought. But the house was still. Just memories. No laughter. No nothing.

NEW HOUSES—

HERE WAS A SCARCITY of alcohol, liberty, and time. House parties weren't. Party boys couldn't. Spendthrifts didn't. The old days of "shoot-the-likker-to-me John-boy" were going out along with mornings-after, hang-over remedies and late dates.

It was a near-sober year; for there was a new brand of fun for fraternities.

Most chapters held small affairs, substituting Dorsey and Goodman and James on wax for the real thing. They went on hayrides in December, had stag parties over beer kegs, gave cabin get-togethers instead of three-day festivities. The ornate was out. Simplicity and informality were theme words; and although the glamour was gone, people managed to enjoy themselves.

Men and women played with the same vigor with which they worked, learning to have fun without the sophistication of former years.

RUSHING WAS HARDER—BUT RUSHING WAS DONE.

*T*O THE STUDENTS ON THE CAMPUS privileged to wear the "Phi Bete" key, Phi Beta Kappa represents a minimum of eight full quarters of work in which a scholastic average of 92.5 or better has been maintained. Often content to rest on its own laurels, the fraternity this year took a step forward as plans inaugurated last spring materialized into the form of a tutorial system. Under this plan members offered their services as tutors in their major subjects to those first and second year students who needed scholastic aid but who were financially unable to get it.

TAU KAPPA ALPHA

TAU KAPPA ALPHA, national honor forensic fraternity, was founded at Indiana in 1908, and now has 105 chapters. The local chapter was established in 1910. Active membership is limited to those who have participated in at least two years of forensic or public speaking activity, have demonstrated superior ability as debaters or public speakers, and rank in the upper thirty-five per cent of their college class, in accordance with the regulations of the Association of College Honor Societies.

The purpose of this fraternity is threefold: to award suitable recognition for excellence in forensic meets and public speaking; to promote interest in speech among the general public and especially among the students of college; and to foster a respect for, and an appreciation of freedom of speech as a vital element of democracy.

Officers: Howard Ennis, President; Dr. Hugh Lefler, Honorary President; Rene Bernard, Vice-President; E. O. Brogden, Jr., Secretary.

Members: Rene Bernard, E. O. Brogden, Jr., William B. Cobb, Howard Ennis, Frank Earnheart, Aaron Johnson, Richard Railey, and Clyde Rollins.

Faculty: F. F. Bradshaw, Albert Coates, W. T. Couch, J. L. Godfrey, F. P. Graham, R. B. House, C. E. McIntosh, H. T. Lefler, and E. J. Woodhouse.

PHI MU ALPHA

HI MU ALPHA SINFONIA, honorary music fraternity, is made up of outstanding music students on the campus. The local chapter, Alpha Rho, endeavors to advance the cause of music by sponsoring concerts both of nationally known artists and of its own members, assisting the music department in all of its programs, and encouraging original composition. Among its activities this year, the fraternity sponsored a concert by Benno Rabinof, violinist.

Officers this year were: Earl Slocum, Province Governor; Alexander Harper, Supreme Councilman; Allen Garrett, President; Jack Ellis, Vice-President; Edgar Sikes, Secretary; Monte Howell, Treasurer; Richard Ford, Historian; and James Hall, Warden.

Members are: Allen Garrett, Alexander Harper, John Ellis, Monte Howell, Edgar Sikes, William White, Joseph Marshall, Winfield Rose, Richard Ford, James Hall, Lawrence Leinbach, Allen Bergman, Eric Schwarz, Charles Stevens, Charles Clinard, Peter Robinson, Earl Slocum, Maurice Griffin, Tillman Pearson, Herbert Wyatt, Bill Mabrey, and John Fesperman.

Faculty members are: Dr. Glen Haydon, Dr. Jan P. Schinhan, Dr. Benjamin F. Swalin, John Toms, Earl Slocum, and Delbert Beswich.

WARTIME SPORTS

CAROLINA AND THE NATION'S sports fans looked earnestly toward the services last spring for some word as to the status of intercollegiate sports. Universities were turning military, students were preparing to shoulder arms along with their friends already in the service, and athletic directors were waiting patiently for the closing of their books for the duration.

The Army showed little sympathy for the sports enthusiasts. Students assigned to study at a seat of higher learning were handed strict regulations, crowded schedules, and little, if any, time for extra-curricular activity. The Army heads debated with the loyal public for weeks before the final official "No" was sounded from Washington. —Schools with Army groups alone would not play a major part in intercollegiate activity for the duration.

Carolina, however, had only some 300 odd Army men, and was expecting over 1200 Naval reservists. The wizards at Woollen turned toward Washington with the hope that once more the Army and Navy wouldn't agree.

"During their college training, Navy students may take part in all college athletics and other campus activities provided such activities do not interfere with their prescribed hours or courses of study." . . . That was all we were waiting to hear. Carolina prepared to meet all comers on the athletic field—schedules were drawn up with V-12, civilian and military organizations. In September Carolina's first V-12 football team met the challenge of wartime travel and a stiff schedule. Many obstacles had to be overcome during those first few months—practice periods were short, trips were limited, and gates were scanty. But we were not discouraged and when basketball season came around, Carolina once more readied a Navy team, a team composed of men with but a short time to practice each day, men with but a few hours off in which to travel. . . . But every minute was made to count, and the fullest advantage was taken of every break, no matter how slight.

Boxing, wrestling, swimming, and track were all met in like fashion, and when baseball days arrive, Carolina will offer another V-12 squad.

The Navy has given the "go-signal" and Carolina has again moved forward.

and all-alumni coached Carolina team ran up an impressive record of six wins against three losses, completing the season ranking thirteenth in a nation-wide poll.

Faced with the financial and transportation problems that come with a uniformed-campus, the Athletic Association presented the 1943 Tar Heels with a strong wartime schedule. This schedule obligated the Carolinians to play such formidable outfits as Georgia Tech, Penn State, Pennsylvania, and Duke.

An experienced band of Tar Heels made the weary trip to Atlanta and were toppled by the Yellow Jackets to inaugurate the season. The same group, in somewhat better condition, met a strong Penn State V-12 team on Carolina soil the next week, and made headlines with their first victory.

The potentially-great service outfit from Jacksonville Naval Air Station arrived the following week at Chapel Hill, and felt the full fury of the Blue and White, 23-0.

Duke was scheduled to meet the Tar Heels twice during the season, and in the first encounter most of the existing V-12 members, victims of the mid-season graduation, partook in their last college defeat, as the Blue Devils trounced Carolina 14-7, a score far from indicative of the run-away.

A makeshift Tar Heel team of "B" squad members and a few V-12ers ran through N. C. State for three quarters, two Saturday's later, but had a hard time holding the Wolfpack to thirteen points in the final period to squeeze a win by a mere 27-13. The second-half team began to take shape when they defeated South Carolina the next week, and made Carolina's bid for national prominence the following week-end, downing a star-studded Pennsylvania eleven, 9-7.

The Penn win made the Tar Heels likely subjects for Bowl consideration until the second game with the Duke juggernaut knocked them down, 27-6. Coach Tom Young's crew bounced back in their last encounter of the season, however, and whitewashed a light Virginia outfit, 54-7.

YELLOW JACKET STING IS BITTER

THE EFFECTS OF STARTING PRACTICE many weeks later than most teams, and of being limited to one hour each day on the playing field, stood out clearly in the first Tar Heel encounter of the 1943 season as fumbles and a guy named Prokop topped Carolina's V-12 warriors, 20-7.

Lacking the coordination that comes from many hours of drilling, the Tar Heels, nevertheless, stole the offensive honors by completely outplaying their opponents, 14 first downs to five.

The final scoring punch, so necessary when meeting a Tech team well versed in the art of capitalizing on all breaks and the plan of deceptive football, was completely lacking.

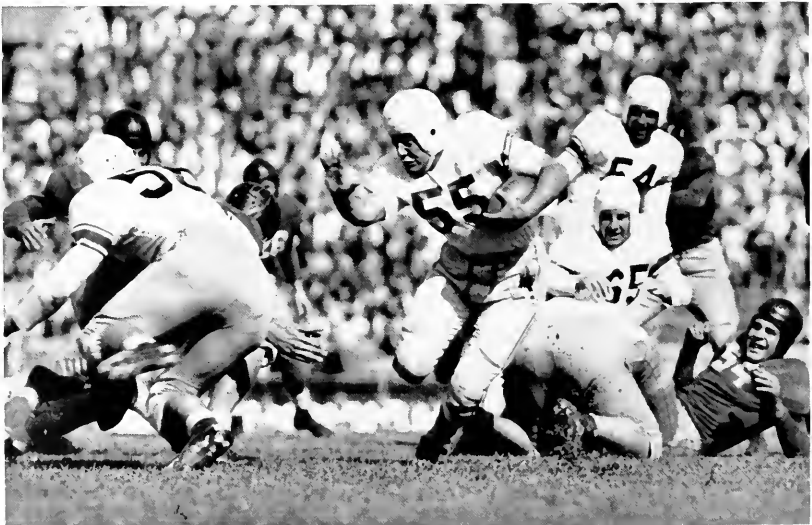

Tech opened with fireworks within five minutes after the starting whistle, when they marched from their own 18 to score in four first downs.

McCollum's fumble on the Tar Heel's 24, on the first play of the second half, set up the home team's second score. A few short plunges ended in a touchdown and Prokop's educated toe made it two conversions.

It was then that Carolina turned on its newly-found running power and sent Jack Fitch 34 yards for the lone Tar Heel tally. Teague added the extra point.

Tech added the final six points in the fourth period when Prokop tore around end from punt formation on his own 16, and ran 85 yards for the final score.

CAROLINA SQUELCHES LION'S ROAR

CAROLINA PLAYED ITS FIRST home game of the 1943 season against a powerful Penn State eleven, setting back the invading opponents, rated by many as one of the best clubs in the East, 19-0.

Despite the fumbling habit and a slow start, the Tar Heels completely outplayed the Nittany Lions by amassing a total of 162 yards rushing as to the visitors' 70, and chalking up nine first downs to the Easterners' 5.

The Tar Heels played the visiting V-12 outfit on even terms until Billy Myers, with three minutes remaining in the first half, broke away around end for six yards and the first touchdown.

Following the opening of the second half, the Tar Heels began to click against a strong forward wall and, making use of two pass interceptions, chalked up the other two scores.

Myers threw a six-yard aerial through center to Eddie Bryant early in the third period, after Wayne Palmer, a Southern Methodist transfer, intercepted a Penn State forward on the Lions' 34 to pave the scoring.

Early in the fourth quarter Dick Harris stole an aerial on the Penn State 38, from which spot the Tar Heels marched to the six where Cox streaked around end for the final six points.

"STOP THE NAVY AIR CORPS"

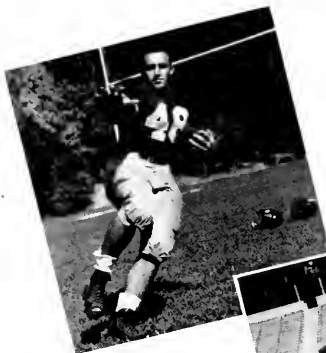

CAROLINA STRESSED AERIAL ATTACK for the first time this season when it met a more formidable opponent than it had expected in the men from Jacksonville Naval Air Station, and came through to win, 23-0.

The ground work for the first quarter and first score was laid via the air lanes as the Tar Heels carried the ball early in the period from the Air Raider's 39 across the goal in only five downs. A 31-yard pass from Teague to Bryant placed Carolina on the nine, from which spet the locals had little trouble scoring.

The game's thriller accounted for the second Tar Heel touchdown when Jack Hussey, racing to the end zone, flanked by two Jacksonville men, turned around at the right split second to catch a bullet-like spiral from Myers, thrown from the 25-yard line.

Close to the end of the first half, Eddie Bryant, wingback, and former Virginia speedster, turned in two brilliant pass catches to set up the Tar Heels' final touchdown. A pass from Myers to Bryant moved the ball from Carolina's 36 to the Air Raiders' 33. On the next play, Myers faded to the right and passed to Bryant on the sidelines. Eddie caught the ball and stepped out on the 13. Vernon Thomason ended the drive with a brilliant run behind Palmer's blocking to score.

Late in the game, with the ball resting on the Jacksonville's 17 and fourth down coming up, Ray Poole, United Press All-Southern, kicked an angling field goal from the 25-yard marker.

WE FAIL TO TWIST DEVIL'S TAIL

*M*ORE THAN 25,000 TAR HEELS were on hand October 16, but even such an overwhelming following could not aid the eleven men on the field when the Duke Devils began to roll. And after all was said and done, every loyal fan agreed that we were "darn lucky" to get away with as little a defeat as 14-7.

Eddie Cameron's squad had complete control over the situation except for one startling moment in the last quarter when Myers dropped back to the Tar Heel 8 and rifled a pass to Bryant on the 25 who, in turn, outran the entire Duke squad for the lone Tar Heel tally of the day.

The Durham team started right off from the starting whistle and scored after nine plays when Tom Davis found a hole through tackle. He broke through for 40 yards and a touchdown. In the second period, the Tar Heels attempted to use their aerial offense but were completely dazed after Hartley intercepted Myers' pass on the Carolina 48 and ran for the end zone. Big Bob Gantt converted after each of the Blue Devil scores, while George Grimes added the Carolina extra point.

CAME NEAR LOSING THIS ONE

ON THE SATURDAY following mid-season graduation of most of the V-12 transfers, the Tar Heels tackled N. C. State and romped all over the Wolf-pack for three quarters, only to allow thirteen points against them in the final period, barely getting away with a 27-13 victory.

Once more passing came into its own when an aerial from Teague to Thomason scored the first Tar Heel touchdown in the opening frame, and later when Myers, after having fumbled the pass from center on the State 25, retreated to the 40 and threw Kosinski a forward, Kosinski skipping the remaining distance for the second tally.

Shortly after the opening of the second half, Teague executed a zany pirouette through the entire State team from the 14 to the two and Arbes bounced the remaining two for a score. Seconds after this score, State fumbled and Carolina recovered. Myers skirted around end for the final touchdown for Carolina.

The Tar Heel squad fell apart in the fourth period and State's civilian kids plowed through little opposition for two touchdowns and a conversion.

GAMECOCK'S CROW NO MORE

A REVAMPED TAR HEEL SQUAD muffed many scoring possibilities when meeting South Carolina at Columbia, but managed to carry enough punch to outplay the Gamecocks and collect 21 points, against the home team's six.

Scoring shortly after the opening kickoff, the Tar Heels were never actually threatened and continued to romp all over the field, piling up more than 300 yards rushing. The substitutions were strange to those who had followed Carolina during the first four games but the scoring was handled by the "veterans." It was Eddie Teague who broke away for 43 yards and the opening score, and Hosea Rodgers who took George Grimes' lateral in the second period and ran 32 yards for the second tally, only to add to this another score later in the game when he smashed over from the one yard line.

The Gamecocks scored when an attempted pass to Grimes on the South Carolina 20 was intercepted by Shaw and run back 80 yards for a tally.

CAROLINA ENTERED the Pennsylvania contest as 3-1 underdogs at game time but smashed their way across snowy ground to a 9-6 upset of a top-ranking Quaker eleven. After about two-thirds of the first half, Penn found itself on their five-yard line when Michaels faded back over the goal to find a receiver. Hesitation proved disastrous as Big Barney Poole crashed into him, sending the ball careening through the air until it was finally downed by a Penn man in the end zone for a Tar Heel safety.

The two points loomed big until the fourth quarter when Kane slipped away from two Carolina tacklers on a naked reverse and headed down the sidelines for 80 yards and six points. Just ten plays later, however, Rodgers plunged through a hole in the left side of the Quaker line and, knocking out All-American Odell, raced 34 yards for the payoff points. Grimes converted and the scoring was complete.

On the defensive honor role, it was Jack Fitch who twice saved the game for Carolina. Two times Fitch came from behind to catch fleet Joe Kane and halt what seemed to be sure touchdown jaunts.

HO, HUM . . . TRY AGAIN NEXT YEAR

DUKE CALLED IT A SEASON and copped the National scoring crown on November 20 when they took the Tar Heels into camp, 27-6.

Playing for the second time in the same season, the game drew 26,000 fans, most of whom had expected to see the strong Carolina team that had upset Pennsylvania the previous week. Carolina remained strong for about 20 minutes, but after Buddy Luper made away with a 79-yard touchdown dash near the end of the first half, the Blue Devils remained in control of operations.

On the third play of the second half, Luper passed to Haggerty for the second Duke score, and three minutes later Balitsaris drove over from the one to chalk up the third score. Gantt added to his laurels by catching a pass from Hartley in the fourth to complete Duke's scoring.

Trailing 27-0 in the final stanza, the Tar Heels marched 56 yards in three plays. Myers threw a 52-yard aerial to Miller, who caught the ball off the hands of two opponents, and ran to the four. Myers then followed with a right tackle smash for the lone Tar Heel score of the day.

"...TAKING CANDY FROM A HAM"

*F*OLLOWING THE DUKE DEBACLE, the Tar Heels went all out to run a small massacre of their own as they crushed hapless Virginia 54-7, at Norfolk to end the season. From the start it was Carolina's ball game, the only question remaining pertained to the final reading of the scoreboard.

Teague threw to Barney Poole for the first touchdown in the closing minutes of the first period, and seven plays later Rodgers tore off from the Carolina 35 on a touchdown run through center. Fitch took the ball from McCollum on a reverse five plays after the second quarter began and ran 18 yards for another score. The remaining minutes of the first half saw Carolina rack up a safety and the Cavaliers tally a touchdown from the 20.

Poole provided the day's thrill when he caught a pass from Grimes in the third period and toppled over on his back into the end zone. In the fourth quarter, with the Virginia lightweights completely undone, McDaniels, McCollum, and Myers scored, Grimes making a pair of conversions.

ANDREW A. BERSHAK

*A*NDY BERSHAK, Class of '38, All-American football end, student, coach, scholar, and gentleman died at his Pennsylvania home on November 19, the eve of the traditional Duke-Carolina football game. Bershak, who compiled a 90 scholastic average, served as President of the Athletic Association, and was active in both the Golden Fleece and Order of the Grail while a student here, was the personification of the Carolina gentleman. He was, and his memory will continue to be, a credit to the University which he served so nobly.

BASKETBALL

THE 1944 EDITION OF TAR HEEL basketball also felt the war-time change as transfers from near and far made up the majority of varsity members. The Pooles, Fitch, and Teague were again noticeable in the sports headlines, but although their brilliance was added to the individual prowess of such stars as Mock, Creticos, Altemose, Hayworth, Box, Donnan, and Stevenson, Coach Lange's V-12 charges opened their wartime schedule with only a fair showing.

After winning the first two service encounters the Tar Heels fell victims to the Cherry Point Marine team, piloted and lead by ex-Carolina star Bob Rose, and from their first loss on proceeded to play inconsistent and mediocre ball. Individuals outplayed themselves in many encounters, but win or lose, the team proved to be decidedly divided. Actions were far from amalgamated.

"Buster" Stevenson led the Langemen to their initial victory in the first game of the season against an aged Camp Butner five. Stevenson tossed in six goals to top the scoring in a slow 46-35 contest. Boyce Box, transfer from the Southwestern Conference, pressed the leader hard with a total of ten points.

Lieut. Glenn Price, ex-Duke University cage captain, pitted his 309th Bombers of Columbia Army Air Base against the Phantoms for their second opposition, and succeeded in entertaining a slim crowd for the first period. But, the service club fell to the youth of the Tar Heels in the remaining portion, finally losing 47-35.

The following afternoon Rose brought his Marines to Woollen and the result was disastrous for the Tar Heels as the final score read, 41-34. Ex-Big Five stars filled the roster of the Fort Bragg Reception Center team which knocked the Phantoms down for their second loss in a row. The soldiers were ahead after an 8-8 deadlock was broken early in the contest, and succeeded in rolling up a 30-11 score at the half. In the second period Carolina threatened, but the Army won out, 52-44.

Carolina then opened up against its first college rivals of the season in the form of a spunky little V-12 club from Milligan College in Tennessee. Although the Phants crept out in front three times during the first stanza, the score read 23-20 in favor of the visitors at half-time, and never changed. Final tabulations showed a Milligan victory, 41-34.

The Tar Heels rebounded from the Milligan loss, however, and came a shade near running away with the court in the Catawba contest, winning 74-37. The Indians led 6-2 until Carolina began to click, and the score read 39-17 at the half. Box led the pack with 18 points, Altamose and Creticos were followers with eleven and ten respectively.

BASEBALL

CAROLINA'S BASEBALL NINE helped inaugurate the newly innovated Ration League last spring, by edging out Duke, Pre-Flight and State for the loop title.

Tackling a 17-game schedule, Coach Bunn Hearn's 1943 edition of Tar Heel baseball managed to come through the wartime season with 13 wins against a mere four defeats. Despite continuous threats from the local draft boards, and the inconveniences suffered on the road due to transportation difficulties, the squad gave a good account of itself in winning when victory counted the most, and taking a total of three loop contests apiece from such formidable opposition as Duke and State.

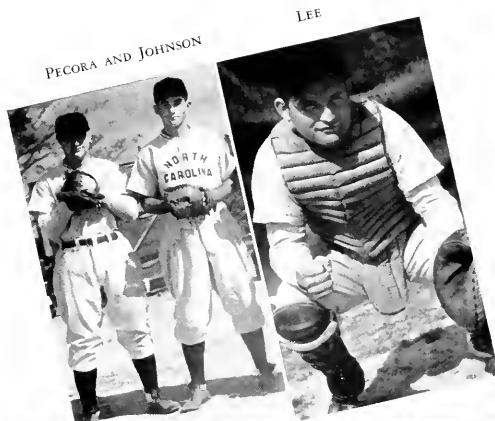

The season, opening early in April, started with a one-sided Tar Heel victory of 13-2 over a hapless State crew. Eight days later the game was moved to Raleigh but the shift only served to lighten the Tar Heel blow, as State again lost, this time, 5-2.

Carolina took its only win from the 1943 Pre-Flight squad, 5-2, following this fete with another 5-2 total over the Blue Devils. The Air Corps, however, stopped the Tar Heels, 3-1, upon their next meeting, after which game Bunn Hearn's men bounced back to trim Davidson, 15-4.

State, Duke, Burlington and V. M. I. all fell before the heavy hitting of Hayworth and Johnson and Carmichael's pitching until the mid-season winning streak was broken by Washington and Lee, 5-4.

The remainder of the campaign proved uneventful except for a win over Navy and a split with Duke. In the middle of May, however, the Tar Heels backed into the Ration League title when a decisive contest with Pre-Flight was rained out, and the season records barely named Carolina the winning outfit.

*M*ISSING THE UNDEFEATED-BOUND BOAT for the second straight year due to a 5-4 setback at the hands of a northern outfit, Coach John Kenfield's Southern Conference champions wound up a curtailed schedule, last spring, by amassing seven wins in eight dual meets.

A 5-4 heartbreaker at Princeton spoiled the hopes of Harriss Everett and the 1942 edition for a perfect season, and a similar defeat against Navy kept this year's crew away from the land of milk and honey.

Captain Harold Maass gained an even split in eight singles matches this year, scoring double wins over rivals Duke and Davidson, while Jack Markham, ending a brilliant collegiate career, scored wins in five out of eight contests.

Moyer Hendrix, another Senior, enjoyed one of his best seasons in losing only twice during eight matches. Moyer's only losses were chalked up on the northern tour, when the fourth seeded star lost close affairs at Army and Navy.

Larry Cahall, along with Ray Morris, held the squad's individual record title, sporting an undefeated season until the Georgia Tech meet. Morris also boasted seven wins out of eight tries, losing only at Annapolis.

Don Peck and Dan Marks rounded out the starring roster, with Marks handling the No. 3 doubles duties, and Peck turning in a record of four victories in five matches.

TENNIS

The netmen met their 1943 adversaries with only three returning lettermen from the previous Southern Conference champs. The season started at Davidson with a 4-3 win. The score was far from indicative of the brand of tennis played and the Tar Heels prepared to head north the next week certain of championship material.

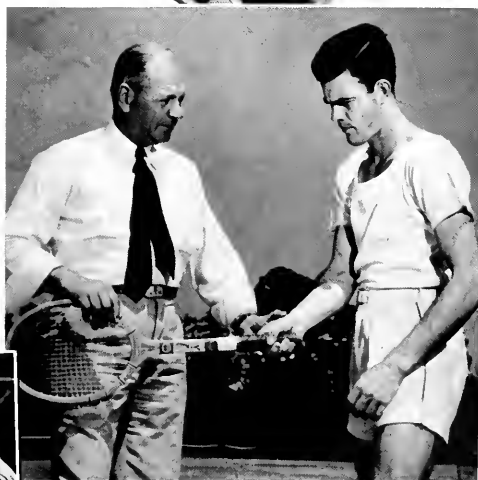

In a match, undecided until the final doubles score was made known, the Carolina squad fell before the racquet-wielders from Navy, 5-4. Bouncing back from the defeat, however, they completed the remainder of their inter-sectional contest in grand style, with a 7-2 victory over St. Johns, and a triumph over Army, 6-3.

After two postponements, the Tar Heels tackled Duke on home grounds and scored a decisive 8-1 victory. Davidson returned for another try at the Big Five champions, but fell at the hands of Maass and company, 7-0.

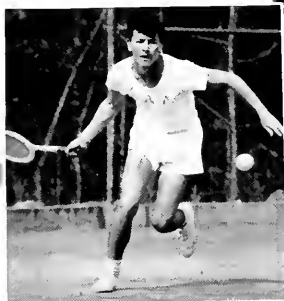

After defeating Georgia Tech in Chapel Hill, Coach Kenfield's team rounded out the season with a 7-2 win over Duke, thereby removing all opposition to the retaining of both Southern Conference and Big Five crowns.

CAROLINA'S 1943 EDITION of outdoor trackmen, under Coach Dale Ranson, went through conference competition undefeated, and scored one victory in two non-loop contests.

Climax of the Spring campaign was the Tar Heels' successful defense of the Southern Conference Outdoor Track title, crowning individual champions in nine of the fifteen tournament events. Leading the Carolina trackmen through the season were Co-Captain Mike Mangum, high scorer in each of the team's four meets; Rich Van Wagoner, who successfully defended his Conference mile title, which he won initially in 1942; Freshman Julian McKenzie, sprint and distance star; Jim Lloyd and Co-Captain Truitt Bennett, both of whom ended their collegiate years with victories in the pole vault.

Last year's squad edged out a strong Navy team for the championship by finishing fast in the one-mile relay, and completed an undefeated season. This year's team worked daily in preparation for meeting some of the East's strongest track teams in the 60-yard dash, 70-yard high hurdle, 70-yard low hurdle, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, one-mile run, two-mile run, one-mile relay, pole vault, high jump, broad jump, and the shot put.

SWIMMING

CAROLINA'S BLUE DOLPHINS, who won 23 Conference dual meets and four league championship events in a row, were expected to have another leading contender for Southern and maybe even intersectional honors in 1944. Coach Dick Jamerson built the '44 edition around ten lettermen, headed by Captain Denny Hammond, who set a national intercollegiate record in the backstroke two years ago and who won both the backstroke and the 200-yard free style at the 1943 Conference meet. The other veterans included Buddy Crone, Conference and National Junior A.A.U. diving champ; Snooky Proctor, Southern title holder in the 440, and Ben Ward in the sprints. Ward was high scorer in the Carolina A.A.U. meet last summer with 18 points but did not return to school until winter quarter, and therefore missed most of the preliminary training for the '44 edition.

The supporting cast of veterans listed Bill Herr, sprints; Allen Kauffman and Henri Huse, distances; Ira Abrahamson, breast stroke; and Bill Stevens, diving. Jim Wildman, from Rutgers, who won the Carolina A.A.U. breast stroke last summer, was about the only V-12 acquisition who had already achieved stardom. However, the varsity had two other newcomers who made All-American freshman ratings here in 1942 but did not come out in '43 because of heavy scholastic loads. These were Percy Mallison, who ranked No. 1 among the nation's freshmen in the 100 that year, and George Whitner, who stood No. 2 in the breast stroke. Mallison captured both the 50 and 100 in the Carolina A.A.U. last summer, while Whitner, who displays a fine free-style as well as the breast stroke, swept the 200, 400, and 800 in the free-style, and the 300 medley.

This roster gave the Dolphins eight top flight performers and five supporting lettermen. However, the reserve pickings remained small and losses by injuries, sickness and studies were the most feared throughout the season. The team was a little weaker in the back stroke and diving but proved slightly stronger in the 100, 400, and medley. They remained somewhat the same in the 50, 220 and breast stroke so the sum total was about the same as last year.

The 1943 edition maintained not only its four-year monopoly on Conference swim honors but also defeated Georgia's Southeastern title holders for the unofficial championship of the South. Their only loss was to the great Navy club, and that was in the outside competition.

BOXING

ALTHOUGH CAROLINA'S 1944 boxing squad appeared young and inexperienced as the training period opened, Coach Joe Murnick laid plans for a strong 20-man outfit that would offer creditable competition in a tough wartime schedule.

Captain Charlie Kimsey, clever 155-pounder, and Dan Davis, 145, were the only lettermen returning from the 1943 squad which won one meet out of four but which held state champions Virginia and The Citadel to 4½ to 3½ scores. Over half the other members of the '44 representation had no experience in the ring, but they improved rapidly during stiff drills and added to the enthusiasm and hustling of the outfit by the time the first contest rolled around.

Other standouts during fall practice were Al Peterson and K. B. Stallings, at 120 pounds; Fred Muster and Don Dunkelberger, at 127; and Jim Koustenis, at 135. The heavyweight ranks remained uncertain until well into January, but Bob Davis, Jean Nicholson, and Marshall Parker were ranking candidates for squad posts.

WRESTLING

CAPTAIN JOHNNY DAVIS was the only one of 11 monogram winners back from the 1943 wrestling squad, which pushed V.M.I. for the Conference title 33 to 32, and Coach Quinlan was forced to build from the ground up. Although the veteran Tar Heel mentor, who has piloted Carolina to the Big Five title for five years in a row had the largest winter sport squad at Chapel Hill, it was also the greenest and most problematical.

Because of his football duties, "Quinny's" knack of developing wrestlers was forced to wait until late December, and he was forced to meet opening competition with inexperienced material. However, the young candidates waged a nip and tuck scrap for a starting spot and by the time January 8 arrived, the wrestlers met Duke on home grounds and on equal terms.

Standouts on the squad were: W. Y. Nachamson, 121 pounds; John Hallett and C. A. Jacobs, at 128; J. R. Allison, 136; J. M. Thompson and J. E. Henry, 145 class; W. A. Stuart, J. R. Hendricks, H. CROSS COUNTRY

COACH DALE RANSON'S 1943 edition of the cross country team turned in a rather dismal record as they entered three meets and failed to record one victory. The first trial for the Tar Heels was at Durham where a strong Pre-Flight outfit dominated the scene over Duke, Virginia, and Carolina. Coach Ranson's crew ran third in the initial meet, topping only the Blue Devils.

The second meet was a triangular affair with the Pre-Flighters once again running away with honors, and the Carolina men ending up just one jump ahead of the last place Cavaliers.

The "Harriers" ended the season at Annapolis with the Middies piling up an impressive score and discouraging any Carolina hopes of a win in 1943.

Julian McKenzie, Hall Patrick, and Jimmy Miller were standout Tar Heel performers, while Howard Ennis, Dick Hollander, Bill Halsey, and Clark Burritt were the other team notables.

THE UNIVERSITY CLUB

THE UNIVERSITY CLUB, composed of Junior Class representatives from men's dormitories, fraternities, and Senior Class representatives from each girl's dormitory and sorority, has a close contact with every phase of campus life.

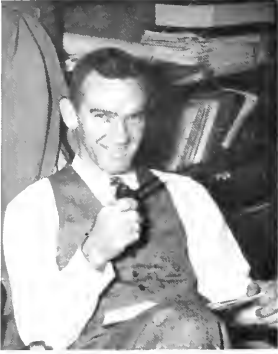

Through its cooperation with the Athletic Association the club seeks to promote and maintain enthusiasm and good sportsmanship in all University events by sponsoring pep rallies, improving intra-school relations, and assisting other organizations in carrying out projects which will benefit the student body and the University.

Pep rallies, torchlight parades, and bonfires characterize the activities of the club for the year. Beginning with the Freshman Smoker at Graham Memorial, they were climaxed by the bonfire and pep rally before the Carolina-Duke game.

The club is a service organization and all of its functions are carried through in the interest of the student body and the University. The motto of the club, "For the University," is self-explanatory of the club's purposes.

AROUND THE CROWDED GYM...

*A*N INFLUX OF NAVY AND MARINE corps V-12 students, running Carolina's enrollment to heights never before numerically reached, have helped to make Woollen gymnasium one of the busiest activities on the campus.

From all over the country last July came ex-college athletes and high school boys with sports studded careers as the Navy called in its reserve youngsters for an extensive officers' training school.

With the super influx of service men, came the rigorous job of whipping them into shape physically as well as mentally for the big and tough job which lies ahead. Chief specialists, former collegians and professional sportsters with big names, were ordered to Chapel Hill to help conduct the program. And then there was the omnipresent Carolina physical education staff to lend a hand, called on more frequently during the last few months than ever before.

Strength test to see just what every military student is capable of doing began the Woollen endurance test. Already in constant use with the Pre-Flight and civilian students, the V-12 contingency taxed the local facilities, the most complete facilities in the South.

... WITH INTRAMURALS

Much organization and planning has led to a well balanced physical training program, currently speaking, and Woollen is holding its own.

With the conclusion of the strength tests, consisting of five exasperating exercises tabbed by some one as: pull-ups, squat jumps, squat thrusts, set-ups, and push-ups, the regular daily physical training classes began. With this came a dreaded military track course designed to whip service personnel into conditions are else send them back home to mama as incapable. Wrestling, boxing, basketball, football, and swimming became a must with as much compulsory as a physics lab.

Swimming grew to be the killjoy of every V-12, N.R.O.T.C., and Marine as the water grew colder and colder in the outdoor pool and instructors tended to drive energy output beyond the so-called line of reason. A move to the indoor pool finally became unavoidable, maybe the instructors were getting cold, but swimming remained in disfavor by the whole of the military contingency.

FOR SOME . . .

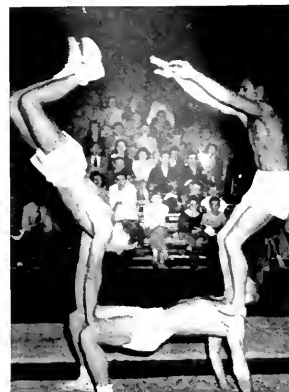

An obstacle course first used entirely by the Pre-Flight trainees, became a part of the regular Navy physical training. Cross country and tough road work all served in the whipping process.

Early season footballers were forced to use Woollen on rainy days and more than 100 men aspired for first string positions when Coach Tom Young yelled for candidates early in October. This amalgamated conglomeration of ex-stars had to be cut in twain and a Jay-Vee, the first squad of its kind in recent Carolina history, was formed. The Tar Heels played a spasmodic season, losing two settoes to Duke, precedent setting to say the least.

Basketball took its fling with the wartime schedule hinging primarily on service team competition. Coach Bill Lange was greeted with 100 men, as was the football coaches, and opened the season against Camp Butner on December 1, winning without mishap. And a good season seemed destined.

But then there was the intramural program, a program expanded to gigantic heights with more persons interested in interhouse competition than ever before.

... AND PHYS ED

Civilian domination of intramurals dropped like a rock when July and the student influx rolled around. Back in the spring it had been a bitter fight to see who would take the intramural trophies and the winners and trophy bearers were the Phi Gamma Delta and the N. R. O. T. C. unit.

Came July and the military and one of the largest of programs was drawn up with a record number of house entries. The winners in the new program as inaugurated since the military arrived follows:

Softball: Blitz Bombers (Army Meterology Unit).

Speedball: Vultures (V-12 Flagler Hall).

Badminton: Dreadnaughts

(N.R.O.T.C. won by Mark Pope).

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS— THE NEW GYM

*T*HE WOMEN'S ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION did not reach its prime until 1934, when the first W.A.A. Council was formed, composed of all University coeds.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Gladys Beard, Miss Helen Hyde, Miss Ruth Franck, and Miss Phyllis Kelley, Instructors, and the President, Ann Hodges, the interest this past year in woman's athletics has been promoted on the campus.

Despite the handicap of having no intramural field, the W.A.A. Council has been responsible for turning out a very successful program. Using Kenan Stadium for a makeshift field, the council held intramural tournaments in hockey and soccer. Spencer dormitory won over Chi Omega in the Hockey finals and walked away with the winner's plaque.

Soccer, a new sport at Carolina this year, was quite a success as far as interest was concerned. Alderman dorm played Alpha Delta Pi in the finals, tying the tournament up with a 0-0 tie.

Volley ball brought out many girls to the old tennis courts, despite biting cold weather. Alph Delta Pi won the plaque from the Delt to lead the sorority league, while Alderman led the dormitory division.

Tennis was carried on despite bad weather, and after a late start, Shirley Dickinson and Whit Parrish reached the finals in the tournament and tied for league honors.

Winter quarter brought intramural basketball and badminton into the spotlight along with a Telegraphic meet in swimming. Neighboring colleges were invited to the Hill for a Play Day in basketball at the end of the season. Before exams, the council presented more exhibition games to the student body in a Demonstration Night. The W.A.A. room was the final scene of Demonstration Night, where tournament winners and varsities were announced and awards presented.

MANY ERSTWHILE TRADITIONS OF Carolina have gone to war, but the annual Junior-Senior dance set is not one of them. Yet, the precedent setting mid-season graduation of Navy Seniors November 20, necessitated earlier festivities than in former years.

It was for that reason that the frolics were slated the week-end of November 15 and 16, the same week-end that Carolina students returned from a heart-breaking football loss to Durham's Duke Devils.

But it was just before the opening dance on Friday evening when cheering crowds commanded Chapel Hill streets in mad celebration of the coming grid fracas. It was also on that same evening that students poured into Woollen gymnasium for an experimental sports carnival and general indoor fun.

Climaxing the entertainment of the day was the dance itself, with Hurst Hatch and his orchestra furnishing the music. Hatch's orchestra carried with great popularity throughout the program, pleasing a capacity crowd with swing and sweet as the suggestions desired.

Into the wee hours of the morning, 2:00 A. M. exactly for the Senior coeds—just a memory now that earlier hours for "all-in" have gone into effect—the blissful occasion sped by.

Came Saturday afternoon, a deserted Carolina campus, because the entire population of the village made one grand exodus to Durham, waited hopefully for returning cheers of victory which did not return. But the crowd did return, half-happy even in defeat because the final night of the Junior-Senior week-end was still in store.

Coeds and imports intermingled with military and civilian students, the heterogeneous crowd being incessantly dominated by uniformed figures, and the night danced away. Midnight came as it did upon Cinderella and Junior-Seniors 1943 was something of the past.

UNIVERSITY DANCE COMMITTEE

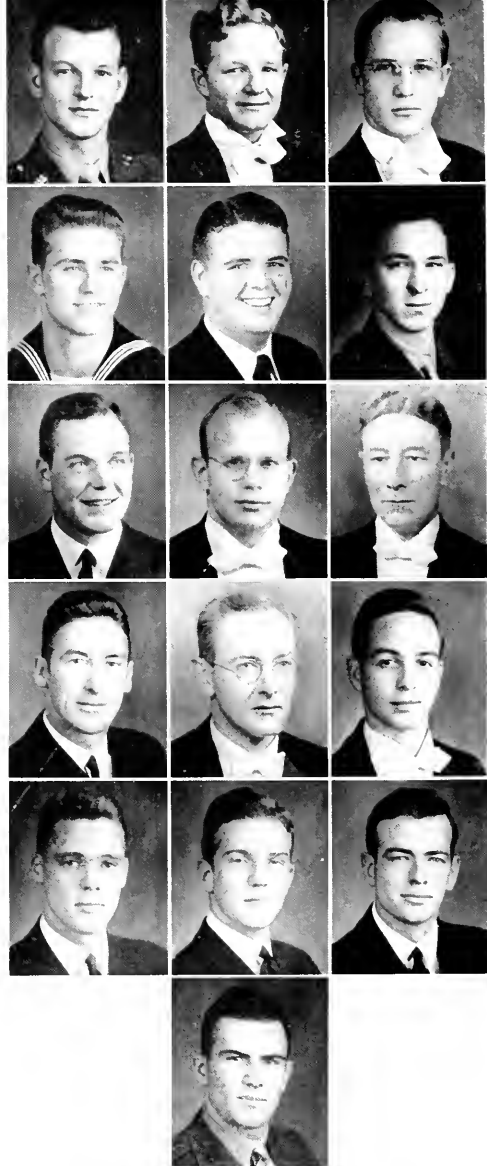

DANCES MAY NOT have been as lavish as in former years, but under the University Dance Committee Carolina continued the affairs for which she is so famous. The now-military committee gave Saturday night pleasure to thousands of students of all types and uniforms.

Three dances were sponsored by the Grail. One packed Woollen Gymnasium with the Duke week-end crowd while eight Beauty Queens were chosen. There were numerous pledge dances, both sorority and fraternity. The Junior-Senior dances came in the fall so that departing Seniors could attend. Nell Barefoot entertained V-12s and others with her summer school dances. Although not originally under the Dance Committee, her group is now. Bob Burleigh sponsored Friday night shows at Graham Memorial. All in all there were more dances than ever at Carolina.

Dance expenditures are limited, the German Club is frozen, but dances can still be fun as was shown by the increased attendance, although formals for the boys were largely replaced by uniforms.

The Dance Committee has done excellent work in acting as hosts and governing the dances under the difficult circumstances. They are now working to keep Carolina dances up to their old standards. Then after the war, when students feel free to enjoy themselves, dances will be as they were before, with name bands and the excitement of a "big" week-end.

Officers: George Whitner, Chairman; Meredith Jones, Secretary.

THE BEAUTY DANCE

*T*HIS YEAR A UNIQUE "beauty" dance, the first presented at Carolina, was held by the Grail and sponsored by the YACKETY YACK on the week-end of the second Duke game to determine the eight most beautiful coeds on the campus for the beauty section of the annual.

Thirty-two girls were nominated to sponsor campus organizations, sororities, fraternities, and girls' dormitories and the eight queens were selected by impartial faculty judges J. C. Sitterson, Hugh T. Lefler, Ervin P. Hexner, Roland B. Parker, George C. Taylor, and James G. Walls.

During the dance, the 32 girls were presented to the audience where final judgment was made by the judges. At the end of the dance, the eight beauty queens were announced. They are presented in the YACKETY YACK on the following pages.
